National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
FEBRUARY 12, 1997

Wheat bids were under pressure, today, in reaction to USDA's higher estimate for 96/97 soft red winter wheat ending stocks and a larger Australian crop estimate. Corn bids were slightly higher with no big surprises reported. Soybean bids moved sharply higher again after the supply/demand report quoted the 96/97 carryout down 15 million bushels from the previous estimate. Wheat steady to 5 cents lower. Corn steady to 2 cents higher. Sorghum 2 to 4 cents higher. Soybeans 12 to 16 cents higher. USDA increased estimates for 96/97 ending stocks for soft red winter wheat. The world wheat ending stocks were slightly lower but this years Australian crop was raised by 1.6 million tonnes. Export sales have been nil so far this week for all commodities but an increase in wheat exports are forecast at 16.5 million tonnes, up 2.3 million tonnes. Corn bids were slightly higher with very little changes at all this week. The USDA supply and demand report helped support corn bids with an unchanged carryout. Soybean bids climbed sharply higher for the fourth consecutive day, supported by a lower USDA carryout figure for 96/97. U.S. Export Sales: Nothing new to report. The Building you want. The Lease you need.

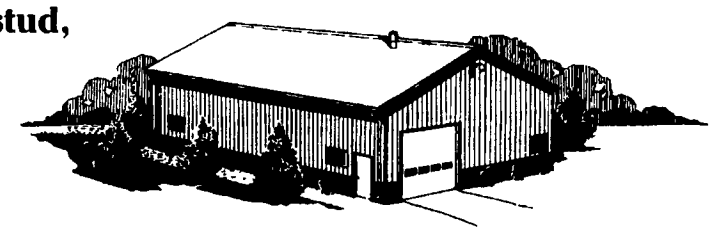
Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

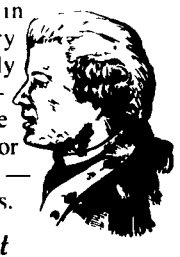
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FEBRUARY 17-23, 1997

FULL SNOW MOON, FEB. 22.

PRESIDENTS DAY

Presidents Day, on February 17, represents a middle ground between Abraham Lincoln's birthday on February 12 and George Washington's birthday on February 22. Also encompassed within those dates is the day (Feb. 20) on which Lincoln's 11-year-old son, William, died at the White House in 1862. Abraham and his wife, Mary Todd Lincoln, had four boys, but only Robert Todd Lincoln survived to manhood. Robert Todd Lincoln had the dubious fame of being near at hand for the assassinations of three Presidents — his father's, Garfield's, and McKinley's.



My politics are short and sweet like the old woman's dance.

– Abraham Lincoln

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Studies indicate that slow background music at mealtimes helps people eat more slowly and consume less.

MAPLE MOUSSE

1/4 cup water
1 package unflavored gelatin
3/4 cup maple syrup
3 eggs, separated
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup whipped cream

Place water in a double boiler. Sprinkle with gelatin and let stand until softened. Stir in maple syrup and egg yolks, then cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat, transfer to a cool bowl, and refrigerate until slightly thicker (at least 15 minutes). Beat egg whites, gradually adding the sugar. Fold egg whites and whipped cream into the cooled mixture. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

Makes 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

The full Moon (Feb. 22) eats clouds.

The weather on the night of St. Peter's Day (Feb. 22) foretells the weather for the next forty days.

When the grouse drum at night, there will be a deep fall of snow.

Because The Best Seed/Herbicide System Starts With The Best Seed.

A4045

Synchrony STS herbicide

A4045 combines very high yield potential, strong emergence, and resistance to Phytophthora root rot. Excellent standability contributes to easier harvest and higher profit potential. A4045 has performed well on the east coast in conventional and double cropping.

In addition, A4045 has the trait for enhanced tolerance to sulfonylurea herbicides like new Synchrony® STS® and Reliance™ STS®.

A4045 for top soybean yields. Synchrony STS or Reliance STS for over-the-top broadleaf weed control. Together you get the best seed/herbicide system--for greater consistency on your farm.

OPINION

Leaders Now And In The Future

The annual national FFA week that runs from today through February 22, again gives recognition to the good work this organization does for our farm and rural youth. FFA empowers students in 7,263 chapters located throughout the United States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands to develop and fulfill a vision for themselves, and their communities, and their nation. FFA works hand in hand with agricultural education, but its impact reaches far beyond preparing employees for the food, fiber and natural resource systems. Students develop the premier leadership, personal growth and career success skills they need to win in agriculture or any other industry, and in life.

Because agriculture offers 200 different careers in business, science, and technology, students with ag education have tremendous opportunities. Many non-farm youth get their introduction to agriculture in the local FFA education and project work programs. Even if these students don't pursue a career in agriculture, they benefit from the public speaking, skills, self-confidence, and leadership talents they develop in FFA.

This year's theme is "FFA—Leaders with a Vision." Appropriately, this theme emphasizes how FFA enables students to develop leadership skills, prepares them to set goals and visions, and empowers them to achieve success. These students are the leaders of tommorrow, and, yes, leaders even today. They will carry the agricultural industry and the nation into the next millenium.

We encourage the 452,885 FFA members to be all they can be. And we commend the many FFA teachers who form the backbone of the FFA program.

We believe FFA casts a bright light on the future of agriculture. Keep up the good work.

To Tighten Up Biosecurity

With the recent outbreaks of several serious diseases, it reminds us of the importance of biosecurity.

Biosecurity is the methods you employ to keep disease organisms away from your animals. These tiny microbes travel from place to place in manure, dust, and feathers. They also travel by air and on people, vehicles, animals, and birds.

Some items to consider are:

- All employees and family members should wear clean clothes everyday.
- Lock all buildings housing animals.
- Do not allow anyone to enter your barns without your permission. Make sure they wear clean clothes, hat and boots.
- Clean and disinfect boots before entering and leaving buildings.
- Change water in foot baths and add disinfectant at least daily.
- Do not visit other farms.
- Do not loan or borrow equipment from another farm unless it is thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.
- Keep a log of all people visiting your farm.

You have a large investment in your animals. The cost of quarantines and depopulation is very expensive and often very emotional. A little precaution now could save a lot of heartache latter.

Remember, the goal of biosecurity is to keep germs away from your animals and your animals away from germs.

To Acquire Pesticide Credits

In order to maintain your pesticide license, you need to secure update credits every year.

We are now in the heart of the winter meeting season. Many of these meetings offer pesticide credits. To help you to find out when and where meetings with pesticide credits are being held in Region 6, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has set up an experimental 24-hour, toll-free telephone number. If you need credits, call 1-800 PENN-IPM or 1-800-736-6476.

If you have not earned your pesticide credits, now is the time to do it. Most of the credits will be offered over the next six weeks. Do not wait to April 1 and find out there are no more meetings.

To Try PDA Pesticide Number

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has set up a toll-free number with meeting dates for pesticide credits. You will need a touchtone phone to use the system. The older rotary dial type phone will not work.

When you call 1-800-736-6476, the phone will answer and welcome you to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) voice mail system. Select 1 for the Pesticide System. As the system is expanded, there will be other possible selections. Next you will enter 6 for PDA Region 6. This is the only region on the system at the present time. Region 6 includes the following counties: Adams, Franklin, Cumberland, Dauphin, Juniaita, Lebanon, Perry, York, and Lancaster.

You will then be asked to enter the code for the category you need credits. The categories are listed on the back of your pesticide license. You will then hear all the meetings scheduled listed by county, town, date and contact person. Meetings are listed alphabetically by county.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Do more than think. Ponder."

FARM FORUM

Editor,

Early last month, Gov. Parris Glendening formally introduced a group of proposals known as "Smart Growth" initiatives. One of those proposals, the Rural Legacy Program, calls for using Program Open Space money and general obligation bonds in targeted areas over the next five years.

Maryland Farm Bureau has been one of the organizations working to refine this proposal since its inception last year. Nonetheless, our organization feels it is important to clarify our position on some points of the proposal.

Maryland Farm Bureau agrees that the use of general obligation bonds and targeted areas for preserving open space and agricultural land in the Rural Legacy Program proposal has some validity. However, we also believe it is critical to increase funding for the Maryland Agricultural Preservation program, a program noted as one of the best in the nation.

Maryland Ag Land Preservation's track record, together with the personnel and structure has already established, make it the best candidate to efficiently use

THE IMPACT OF WHAT'S-HIS-NAME
February 16, 1997

Background Scripture:
Acts 18:1-4; 18-19, 24-26; Romans 16:3-5a
Devotional Reading:
1 Thessalonians 5:12-22

I've never known of a church named after Priscilla and Aquila, but there ought to be. It would be a source of inspiration and example for all those of us whose names are not likely to be remembered in the annals of the history of the Christian Church.

For all that we most certainly owe the great apostles and saints, we also owe a staggering debt to lots of what's-his-name Christians across the centuries. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is as dependent upon the unknowns of the Christian way as it is the bright and shining stars.

Priscilla (sometimes called Prisca) and Aquila are two of the former. But they are hardly anonymous, for their names appear — however briefly — in four different books of the New Testament.

We first come upon this couple in Act 18. Arriving in Corinth, Paul meets this couple and finds that they are tentmakers, as he is. They invite him to stay with them while he is in Corinth. We don't know how long he stayed, but it was evidently a long time, during which he worked with them as tentmakers and also "argued in the synagogue every sabbath, and persuaded Jews and Greeks" (18:4).

DIFFERENT SLANT

So, the relationship began with a simple act of hospitality on their part. Indirectly, they helped Paul in his mission in Corinth. But, when Paul at last left Corinth, Priscilla and Aquila go with him as far as Ephesus. We don't know why. In fact, up to this point we don't even know that they have become converted to Christ. But, in Acts 18:24, we find that they are not only converts, but, when Apollos comes there and begins to preach about Christ, they "took him and expounded to him the way of God more accurately" (18:26).

We don't know what "more accurately" means, but obviously their association with Paul had given them a slant on Christian discipleship that was missing in Apollo's preaching. And that is not the end of their influence as fellow Christians with Paul. In the end of his letter to the Church at Rome, Paul says, "Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my fellow workers in Christ Jesus, who risked their necks for my life, to whom not only I but also all the churches of the Gentiles give thanks; greet also the church in their house" (Ro. 16:3-5). (Note: does this mean they are now in Rome? No one knows the answer to this riddle.)

So, through this oblique reference in Romans we learn that they "risked their necks" for Paul and the Gentile Christian congregations in Asia (today's Turkey) are thankful for what they've done.

A HOUSE CHURCH

Paul refers to Priscilla and Aquila again at the close of his first letter to the Corinthians: "The churches of Asia send greetings. Aquila and Prisca, together with the church in their house, send you hearty greetings in the Lord" (1Cor. 16:19). In 2 Timothy they are mentioned yet one more time: "Greet Prisca and Aquila..." (4:19). As they had extended their hospitality to Paul in Corinth, so in Ephesus they had made their home available to the Christian community there.

There is no way to know just how much these people accomplished for Christ, but I think that we may safely assume they played a valuable role in the spread of the gospel. They were hospitable to Paul, they were companions with him on his journey to Ephesus, they shared with Apollos what Paul had taught them, they risked their necks for the sake of the gospel, and they gathered a Christian community in their own home. They gave what they had to the Lord and it was enough.

And that's all He asks of us, too.

Watershed Planning Conference Set

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — An all-day conference with the theme of integrating natural resource management with land planning is set to be held April 4 at the Stroud Water Research Center in Avondale.

The conference is to consist of two half-day sessions. One is to be devoted to natural resource management and the other to land planning and development.

The conference is being organized by environmental consulting firm Landstudies Inc. in cooperation with the Stroud Water Research Center. The Stroud Center is a national recognized fresh water laboratory, a field station of the Academy of Natural Science in Philadelphia.

The conference is being cosponsored by the Society of American Foresters; the Valley Forge Chapter and the Octoraro Wetland/Native nurseries; Pennsylvania Trout; and the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay.

"This conference will demonstrate watershed planning techniques that focus on implementation," said Mark Gutshall, president of Landstudies Inc. "Speakers will present case studies and provide references for use in local watersheds."

Bernard W. Sweeney, director of the Stroud Center, is to deliver the keynote talk on watershed planning in Pennsylvania.

Some of the topics to be covered under natural resource management, and the speakers of those topics, as confirmed of this week, include: Frank Lucas with the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service who is to talk about agricultural best management practices on Pequea/Mill Creek; Dan Zimmerman, Warwick Township Manager, who is to discuss the restoration of the Lititz Run Watershed; Roxanne Palone, a watershed specialist who is to discuss a riparian forest buffer handbook for the Chesapeake Bay Watershed; and Sweeney, who is to also discuss forested riparian buffers.

Under land planning and development issues, speakers include Calista Santhe with RoLanka, on the role of coir product in soil bioengineering; Earl Shaver, with the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservaiton on the stormwater management handbook; Carl DuPoldt, with the NRCS, who is to talk about the Pennsylvania Best Management Practices Handbook; and Andy Johnson, a conservation advisor, who is to discuss limited development.

For more information on the conference, call Landstudies at (610) 932-3762.

Timber '97 Exposition In May

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Hardwood Lumber Manufacturers Association (HLMA) of Pennsylvania will hold Timber '97, its 14th Forest Products Industry Equipment and Technology Exposition, in Clearfield, April 25-26.

The Timber Show was last held in Clearfield in the spring of 1995. According to the committee chairman, Rick Rufo, "The many requests received from members and exhibitors resulted in the change of schedule which will now alternate the Timber Show in Clearfield in odd-numbered years with the East Coast Sawmill and Logging Equipment Exposition produced in Richmond, Virginia in even-numbered years."

Three types of exhibits space (interior, sheltered and exterior) will feature products, services and equipment, with demonstrations and hands-on activities for attendees.

"Because of Clearfield's more central location to the hardwood lumber and forest products industries in Pennsylvania, attendance and participation grew in 1995 over the previous year in York. Even higher numbers are anticipated in 1997," said Rufo.

As usual, HLMA will present several educational programs repeated several times during the two-day exposition.

Tillage Conference Teaches Soil Savings

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Farmers can learn more about cropping practices that conserve soils — and even more — at the 1997 Conservation Tillage Conference (CTC '97), March 3-4, in Ada.

Farmers with little or no experience in no-till cropping can attend a session titled "No-Till 101" to learn from Ohio State University specialists and experienced farmers.

"The aim is that persons who know little or nothing about no-till can participate in this session and not feel out of place," said Ohio State agricultural engineer Randall Reeder, a conference organizer.

However, the conference will also present current research results for farmers who have been using conservation tillage practices for years. In addition, farmers can learn about new farming technologies not related to conservation tillage. These include genetically-engineered crops, water management, relay intercropping and precision farming.

"Usually the more you learn about a subject, the more you realize there's more to learn," Reeder said. "Conservation tillage is an example of that. You wouldn't find a single no-till farmer in this state in 1997 tell you he has all the problems solved."

Farmers use no-till because it minimizes soil disturbances, which cuts down erosion. In addition, it has economic and time-saving benefits. Farmers who want to realize those advantages can start out small and increase their acreage as they get more experience, Reeder said.

"In most counties, you can rent a no-till planter or drill just to try it out in one field or in part of one," Reeder said.

The U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service reports that 37 percent of Ohio's crop acres was in some form of conservation tillage in 1996. Farmers used no-till in 27 percent of all corn acreage and in 46 percent of soybean acreage. Approximately 40 percent of wheat was planted no-till.

Some livestock producers might have problems adopting no-till because animal manure is usually plowed into soils. Agronomist Tim Harrigan, Michigan State University, will give a session on managing manure in conservation tillage systems.

More experienced farmers will learn the latest research on the troubling issue regarding reduced yields in no-till corn planted after wheat or soybeans. Agronomist Jim Beuerlein and Fairfield County farmer Dave Brandt will give "10 secrets" for yield improvement.

In all, about 30 speakers will address the conference in concurrent sessions. They include university specialists, government farm agency and industry representatives, and experienced farmers. The event attracts nearly 500 people from Ohio, neighboring states and Canada.

Reeder said farmers will make up the CTC '97 registration fees with increased production or savings on their farms.

"Farmers would have to try awfully hard to learn enough to cover their expenses for attending," Reeder said. In addition, prizes will be awarded, including a one-year lease of a no-till drill and a free trip to the 1998 National No-Till Conference in Indianapolis.

Registration forms are available from any local Extension office in Ohio, or by calling (419) 223-0040; (419) 738-2219, or by sending a fax to (419) 228-3601.

Registration prior to Feb. 14 is $15 for a single day and $25 for both days. Add $10 for late registration. Registration will include all lunches. The Monday (March 3) evening meal is $9 extra.

Motels are available in Lima, which is 15 miles west of Ada. Air transportation is a 1.5 hour drive from major airports at Toledo, Dayton, and Columbus.

Pa. Farm Bureau Holds Membership Rally

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau held its annual membership rally Feb. 6 at different sites across the state, achieving 87.22 percent of its membership goal statewide.

The PFB conducts the event for several reasons, though primarily to gain as accurate a count of membership as possible. The PFB divides the state into six regions, and each region held an event Feb. 6.

The PFB membership drive began Jan. 1.

Membership committee chairpersons from each of the districts within the regions and local helpers attend and report their goals, new members, paid membership and number of members needed to reach their respective goal.

In Region I, the goal for membership was 7,166. New members reported were 712, while 6,462 members were tallied for a 90.17 percent achievement for membership goal.

In Region II, the goal was 5,159, with 341 new members reported, and total members accounted for at 4,949 for 95.93 percent of goal achieved.

In Region III, the goal was 4,092 for goal; 364 new; and 3,207 actual for an achievement of 78.37 percent.

In Region IV, goal was 3,628; 311 reported new; and confirmed 2,853, for an achievement of 78.64 percent.

In Region V, goal was 2,458; 147 new; and 2,068 actual for an achievement of 84.13 percent.

In Region VI, the goal was 4,111; there were 363 new; and a reported actual paid membership of 3,675 for an achievement of 89.39 percent of goal.

Statewide, the goal was 26,614 members. As of rally day, there were 2,238 new members reported and 23,214 paid members accounted for an overall achievement of 87.22 percent.

The event also can serve as an educational forum and at the Region 1 rally, held at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland, state Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Russell Redding talked to the group about issues and trends in agriculture, as well as marketing efforts by the state and the role of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Redding was introduced by Region 1's new director Mark Zuzik.

Redding's background includes having been a York County dairy farmer for five years, also having served as the secretary of the state FFA Foundation, worked on the staff of former U.S. Sen. Harris Wofford, and has been working as a deputy secretary under state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius.

He talked about the generally positive outlook for Pennsylvania's agricultural sector, including the benefit of having Gov. Tom Ridge, since he is a strong advocate for agriculture and exporting and stimulating such production businesses in the state.

Redding said having Brosius as a secretary is also fortunate, adding that Brosius is articulate and intelligent and truly understands the agricultural business, changing markets, and exporting products.

Redding talked generally about the successes of the second International Day held in conjunction with the state Farm Show and how successful that has become, helping to use the Farm Show for what it is best — as a showplace for Pennsylvania agriculture.

Issues affecting agriculture in Pennsylvania, particularly in the southeast portion of the state, which is represented by the PFB Region 1, include the loss of farmland, local taxing authority, and the state's outdated municipal code that has the effect of promoting development of land for non-easily renewable uses, such as residential housing and shopping malls.

Redding said estimates are that 150,000 to 160,000 acres of productive farmland are required as a minimum to enable a locally supported economy founded on agriculture.

Some counties are coming very close to losing that amount of agricultural land, despite efforts for farmland preservation.

Redding also pointed out that for every $1 collected in taxes from residential property that local governments pay out $1.30 to $1.40 in residential services.

On the other hand, for every $1 in taxes collected from owners of agricultural land, local governments only pay out 30 cents to 40 cents in services.

Some areas may very well be approaching crisis points in balancing interests and abilities to pay for services demanded.

Redding also noted the fact that 60 to 65 percent of the farmers surveyed depended on off-farm work to supplement on-farm work.

He said that the survey also discovered that the main reason for the off-farm work was to provide health benefits for the family. He said that while some may be working off-farm to support their farming activities, he believes that in addition to health benefits, those who work off-farm do so to help minimize the impact of volatile commodity prices, such as happened recently with milk prices.

"It's not because they have time, not because they are paying for expensive vacations, but (they work off-farm) to supplement (farm income) during price lows," he said.

Redding said the outlook for agriculture can remain good if it is kept in mind that increased production needs increased markets.

He said that the United States has one of the slowest population growth rates in the world, at 1-percent per year, while agricultural production increases by 2- to 2.5-percent per year. That extra production must be exported, if prices are to remain stable.

Other issues that are affecting some and can be expected to affect other producers include country specific prerequisites to accepting products into their country.

With the North American Free Trade Agreement, and the recent General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade which became the World Trade Organization for settling trade disputes among the member nations, Redding said that producers, primarily exporters, are going to have to work with the state Department of Agriculture which is going to have to work the federal government and become adept at finding ways to achieve compliance with another country's requirements for product treatment standards.

For example, he said that the export of Christmas trees from Pennsylvania to Mexico was held up because Mexico required the trees to be sprayed with a pesticide that is banned in the United States.

To work around the problem, Pennsylvania worked with Mexico to develop a testing and certification program to document and verify that the Christmas trees were free of the pest of concern. Now, Christmas trees are exported to Mexico.

Redding said that as nations around the world attempt to increase the standard of living for its middle class, that protectionistic regulations and standards can be expected to be implemented and work will have to be done to help exporting concerns overcome obstacles.

It's a new role for state departments of agriculture, Redding said, becoming involved in product or commodity specific issues in trade disputes.

Food safety is also a concern and ties into the role of the PDA to help ensure compliance and public trust.

Another issue of which farmers should be aware concerns the commodity marketing programs and mandatory deductions for promotions.

Redding said that a U.S. Supreme Court is considering a case in which California peach and nectarine growers are challenging the constitutionality of their industry promotion program by claiming that it is a violation of the First Amendment to force people to pay for expressing an opinion that may not be their own.

The outcome of that case could have wide implications for the rest of agriculture, he said.

He also touched on the current dairy situation and said that while dairy prices did decline sharply, that it is turning around quickly and prices should recover soon.

In addition, he said that Secretary Brosius recently sent a letter to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman praising him for the actions taken to stem the drop in milk prices due to the drop in cheese prices on the National Cheese Exchange.

Redding said that Pennsylvania has requested an options pilot program. He said that the New York Cocao/Coffee/Sugar Exchange would allow futures trading on milk and the pilot program would allow for all commissions to be paid by the government for six months while producers in a six-county area are given the ability to use the market.

Further, he said that those dairy producers who have some ideas about what the Basic Formula Price should look like, and perhaps have contrived a formula to achieve a better basic price, or just have some ideas to share, should take the opportunity to do so now.

He said that Secretary Glickman is seeking input on the issue, and, "It's not often the federal government asks," Redding said.

One of the goals of the PDA is to help relieve farmers from the burden of excessive regulations and a series of time-consuming inspections. He said the goal is not to reduce the quality of product or safety assurances, but rather to seek whether certain regulations are necessary or if there is a better way of achieving the goals such regulation was created to achieve.

Redding said the outlook is good. "We are extremely optimistic about all the change," he said.

With a strong work ethic, a climate that is conducive to agriculture (even though the best land is still being chewed up through liberal allowances for residential and retail development), a strong support of infrastructure such as highways, the fact that more than 50 percent of the United States population as well as 60 percent of Canada's population is within a 24-hour trip by a refrigerated truck of Pennsylvania farmers, a governor who understands the importance of agriculture and a good agriculture secretary, "All of this translates into a very solid base to support agriculture."

He said that all of the issues discussed are not to be solved alone by government. They require a constant communication between the agricultural community and the PDA.

Afterward, Redding fielded questions from the floor — several of which were actually comments than question — which dealt with local tax reform, local interpretations of definitions in the state's Act 319 Clean and Green preferential tax law, reform of the municipal code and local zoning.

Also, it was asked why public sewer and water lines were apparently easy to run through farmland enrolled in an official Agricultural Security Area, since it would do nothing but encourage developers to target that property for their use and also cause the tax rates to increase further helping to separate farmer from land.

The PFB is a member of the American Farm Bureau and serves as an instrument for developing, publicizing, and representing farming policies.

It also provides services for members, such as estate, financial and farm management planning, as well as a group insurance plan.

176 Attend Corn, Soybean Conference In Grantville

Soybean Checkoff Pays Off With New Uses

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Soybean growers who have paid their national checkoff are seeing the results come to research and developmental "fruition," so to speak — new products that use soybeans.

One such product is a new "soy crayon" that is being marketed in schools, made by the Dixon Ticonderoga Company, Maitland, Fla., according to a United Soybean Board (USB) representative.

Yvonne Wente, chair of the new uses committee for the USB and soybean grower from Waverly, Iowa, spoke about the results of the nationwide checkoff to about 176 growers and agri-industry representatives last week at the 1997 Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

Wente provided details of how the checkoff dollars to go fund research into new products, which she displayed at the crops conference. The new products included hand soap, moisturizers and sun blocks, all-purpose cleaners, construction materials and adhesives, solvents, and other items.

In the case of the soybean crayons, which Wente indicated have the bright colors found in petroleum-based crayons, were funded from the USB as a result of an idea for new uses contest won by a student at Purdue University. The box of crayons displays "Made From Soybeans!" on the front, and indicates they contain no petroleum wax — "environmentally safe, pure, and nontoxic," said Wente.

Wente herself grows 680 acres of corn and soybeans on her farm in Waverly, Iowa. She chairs the USB new uses committee, which investigates ways in which to develop markets for soybean-based products.

She told growers that in learning to market their products, "communication is everything." She indicated that the soybean checkoff benefits "all producers nationwide," which includes members in 29 soybean-producing states. The checkoff provides money for fundamental research and exploratory and applied research.

Work funded by the checkoff helped develop materials such as composites. The composites are made by mixing soy flour, newspapers, water, and other ingredients are pressed into plaques, furniture, flooring, cabinet tops, and other areas.

Research developed soybean products used as lubricants and solvents, including a "parts washer" made from soybeans. Other products include auto wax. There's even a product that acts as a personal care sunblock and windscreen to prevent chapping.

A major use of soybeans is in "bioremediation" products, used to clean beaches that have suffered from oil spills. A new area of research is using soy oil in water-based paint that is more quick drying.

A major use of soybeans is in soy ink used by newspaper publishers worldwide.

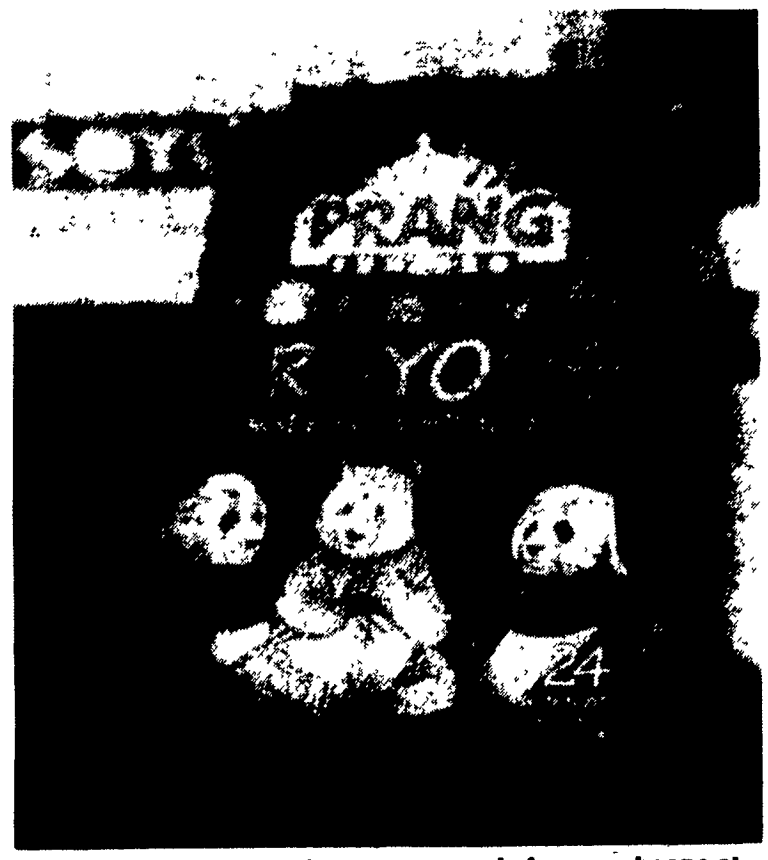
At the conference, the winners of the state soybean contest were held. Winners were, first place, Dwight Rohrer, Manheim, with Asgrow 4045; second place went to Clarence Keener, also from Manheim, with a Pioneer STS 9421; third place to Mellott Farms, Franklin County, with Asgrow 4045.

Rohrer, the first place winner, said he planted soybeans to seven-inch spacing at a plant population of 200,000 using Asgrow 4045. He achieved 75 bushel per acre beans. Keener, second place, noted he planted beans in 10-inch rows for a population of 180,000-200,000 per acre using the Pioneer STS bean 9421, at 65.2 bushels per acre. Third place winner Mellott Farms, Franklin County, achieved 62.9 bushels per acre with Asgrow 4045, at a plant population of 225,000 per acre.

James Beierlein, professor of ag economics, Penn State, indicated to the growers that he is "optimistic about the future of agriculture." He said the managing skills of producers are very high and many are making extensive and wide-scale uses of computers to help manage their acreage.

More information from the conference is available this issue and in next week's special Corn Talk section of Lancaster Farming.

Second and third place winners in the corn contest, from left, David Hileman, Tyrone, second place, sheleld grain class, regular harvest size; Steve Wenger, Lebanon, third place, shelled grain, 3-acre+ harvest size; Clarence Keener, Manheim, second place, three-year average, shelled grain class, 3-acre+ harvest size; and Stephen Fehnel, Easton, third place, three-year average, earn corn class, machine harvest.



Wente spoke about the crayons made from soybeans at the crops conference.

At the conference, the winners of the state soybean contest were announced. Dwight Rohrer, Manheim, won first.

Crops Conference Announces Corn Contest Winners

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The 1996 corn growing season wasn't record-shattering, at least in terms of total yields.

But it was still a pretty impressive year for yields statewide and was the best year ever in bushels harvested per acre, according to a Penn State corn specialist.

Dr. Greg Roth, associate professor, Penn State agronomy, spoke about the corn growing year in general and provided detail about the winners of the Five-Acre Corn Contest last week at the Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

Roth told the 176 growers and agri-industry representatives who registered for the daylong event that the average per acre yield for corn in 1996 was 174 bushels per acre, for the contest, with 17 folks who took in more than 200 bushels per acre of corn.

"Yields on average were higher than ever," Roth indicated.

Plant populations averaged 25,000 per acre of corn (compared to 24,200 last year), and some growers were planting 30,000 per acre.

Curt Rakestraw, president of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association (PMCGA), spoke about a study committee that is reviewing a proposed corn checkoff modeled after the checkoff used in Maryland and Ohio. A survey conducted at the meeting asked producers if they would support a Pennsylvania corn for grain checkoff program at one-half of once percent for corn sold in commercial channels (such as feed mills, brokers, grain elevators, and other locations). All direct farmer-to-farmer sales would be exempt.

The survey also asked where the checkoff money would be spent: Producers could mark the following categories: enhancing farm income, marketing and promotion, increased usage, product development, research, or all categories.

At the conference, the following awards were presented to winners of the Five-Acre contest:

In the three-year average awards (1994-1996), shelled grain class, regular harvest size, first place went to Elder Vogel, Rochester, Beaver County, for an average of 198.5 bushels per acre using Funks 4446A and Dekalb 417; second to Jeff Mitchell, Reinholds, Chester County, for an average of 189.4 bushels per acre using Pioneer 3525, 3293, and 3335; and third to Matthew Maximuck, Doylestown, Bucks County, for an average of 187.9 bushels per acre using Dekalb 623.

In the three-year average awards, 3 acre+ harvest size, first place went to John E. Coleman, Ronks, Lancaster County, for an average of 213.7 bushels per acre using Pioneer 3394 and 3260; second to Clarence A. Keener, Jr., Manheim, Lancaster County, for an average of 210 bushels per acre using Pioneer 3293, 3394, and

Technical Briefing Reports New Silage Trials Show Increased Milk Production

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — During a breakfast meeting at the Silage Conference this week at the convention center, Cargill Hybrid Seeds, Minneapolis, MN. introduced new research information on their trade marked FullTime forages that shows increases in milk production in dairy cows compared to normal corn silage.

Dr. Mike Allen from Michigan State University (MSU) presented information from his feeding tests that shows both an increase in fiber digestibility and an increase in dry-matter intake. Cows fed silage made from FullTime forage actually consumed 8 percent more dry matter, which contributed to increased milk production of 5.5 pounds of fat-corrected milk per cow per day.

Assuming a milk price of $14 per hundredweight (cwt), the MSU results translate to an increase in net income of $150 per cow per 305-day lactation.

In the MSU study 32 cows were fed silage from a conventional hybrid and silage made from the trade marked forage in a crossover design for 56 days. In addition, this fall and early winter on-farm feeding trails were conducted at 157 dairies in 11 states.

According to Dr. John Foley, technology deployment manager in Cargill's animal nutrition division, these farmers are working closely with company nutritionists and territory managers as well as MSU nutritionists to analyze the results. Several 10-day feedbunk trials at about 30 farms are also under way. First feedbunk test results will be available in December, and the on-farm tests will be analyzed by early 1997.

The trend today is to move toward forage hybrids designed specifically for ensiling. Breeding work on FullTime forage bgan in 1991 when Cargill plant breeders began their first genetic enhancement of corn germplasm by incorporating a low lignin gene. The resulting plant contains up to 40 percent less indigestible lignin than conventional counterparts and provides effective fiber in a highly digestible form. This breeding work is a continuation of a broader forage quality program begun in 1987 to screen and develop corn hybrids that produce superior forage yield and enhanced feed value.

Research shows that dry matter intake is the largest factor influencing the production of milk from cows. Improving fiber digestibility enhances feed intake due to increased rumen dry matter turnover. The brown midrib or BMR gene has been found to consistently decrease lignin content and increase digestibility of neutral detergent fiber (NDF).

Jim Beck, Cargill, forage quality product manager reports that research results indicate a real breakthrough in dairy nutrition with the new highly digestable fiber forage. The 20 to 30 percent improvement in fiber digestibility of FullTime forage and the resulting increased in energy intake also improve herd health by maintaining or improving the body condition of the cow. This is especially important during the period of negative energy balance in early lactation.

The breakfast, held by invitation to dairy farmers, consultants, industry representatives, and educators, was a technical briefing held early Wednesday morning before the regular program of the Silage Conference began.

More Than 100 Turn Out For Lancaster Crops Day

Seeding Year Weed Management Critical For Alfalfa

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Rescue personnel refer to the "golden hour" — lifesaving work that first hour after an accident threatens a person's life will determine whether they live or die.

If accident victims rely on the work of rescue personnel in that golden hour, alfalfa fields worry about the work of field managers in that "golden year" — the first year, the seeding year, is critical to keeping weeds from taking over and decimating a stand.

That seeding year is critical, according to a Penn State weed specialist, because what you do to manage that field the first year can have a significant impact on yields.

Bill Curran, Penn State weed specialist, told more than 100 growers and agri-industry representatives on Tuesday morning that when it comes to controlling weeds in forage, including alfalfa, "a lot of people don't care about it," in many cases choosing instead to re-seed or to rotate out of alfalfa. And while weeds in alfalfa do not always affect yield, they do have an impact on forage quality, he noted.

Curran spoke about methods to manage weeds in forages at the Penn State-sponsored 36th annual Lancaster County Crops and Soils Day on Tuesday at the Farm and Home Center.

Growers should focus on the seeding year and pay more attention to the broadleaves that can be more competitive and have more drastic effects on forage quality than foxtail or crabgrass.

Broadleaves such as lambsquarters and pigweed can severely reduce forage quality. In a study last year at the Penn State research site at Rockspring, weed competition in seedling alfalfa at second cutting was studied. Researchers looked at the impact of three different herbicides and one combination of herbicides compared to the use of no herbicide. Their findings: there is heavy weed pressure with no herbicides, with harvested weight per acre half of what it could have been if herbicides were used.

The critical components for successful alfalfa establishment are planting date (seed early spring to be competitive — the earlier you get planted, the better, according to Curran); if seeding late, plant late summer to avoid summer annuals; use fields that had good weed management the previous year; scout the field 3-5 weeks after seeding to look for weed competition; and establish the severity of the weeds before deciding to spray (if there is less than 20 percent weed stand, it may not be a problem in the field).

One Penn State study at Rockspring looked at the impact of weeds on later seeding in the spring. One seeding was on April 16 and the other May 2. There were "significantly fewer weeds in the early seeding," said Curran. A lot of weeds don't germinate until early or mid-May and the alfalfa "will get a jump on it," he said.

Curran provided an overview of different commercial herbicides and their effectiveness. Some have different application timings and some have harvest restrictions.

One concern is the use of herbicides in alfalfa-grass mixtures. In the seeding year, there is nothing you can use for broadleaf or grass control in the mixtures, according to Curran.

Some herbicides are labeled for stands that are more than 12 months old, however.

For more information on new herbicides, Curran noted that the new, updated "Penn State Agronomy Guide" is available from extension offices for $9. Also, a new publication, updated annually, is available from extension offices, the "Field Crop Weed Control Guide," available for $5.50. Contact your local extension office.

Forage growers have some new hope for the control of potato leafhopper in alfalfa. One new type is a leafhopper-resistant variety that makes use of the "glandular hair" or GH-resistant gene, according to Dr. Dennis Calvin, Penn State entomologist.

The leafhopper measures from 1/16 to ⅛ inches long, is pea-green in color, and has a wedge shape. It is often mistaken for the brown spittle bug. The leafhopper arrives to devastate mostly second- or later cutting alfalfa, carried from its origins in the Gulf of Mexico states on weather systems in the spring, literally falling from the skies during spring rains.

The leafhopper eats into the leaf of the plant around the phloem and its resulting work stops plant photosynthesis, causing subsequent drops in crude protein and dry matter content of alfalfa.

(According to Calvin, the amount of crude protein losses can reach 1,500 pounds per acre in pure stands.)

With heavy infestations, the plant can lose of lot of leaf material, said Calvin. Traditional scouting will determine the extent of a field invested with the leafhopper. Scouts use a 15-inch wide butterfly net, performing 20 sweeps at each of five staggered locations in the field from a height of 3-4 inches on the plant.

The glandular hair or GH type of resistance in the plant creates hair-like stems and leaves that prevent the leafhopper from being to bite into the leaf. Also, a sticky substance is emitted on the stems and leaves that may be toxic to the insect.

The GH germplasm was discovered 30 years ago in Africa and the GH resistant gene was discovered 20 years ago in alfalfa. In 1985, the GH germplasm was released. Now, there are more than seven different varieties of GH alfalfa.

While GH alfalfa provides true insect resistance, there are several non-yellowing varieties that don't show the tale-tell yellowing, but the plant still suffers damage. Calvin examined several studies conducted in Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota, and Wisconsin that examined the effectiveness of the GH varieties in combination with spraying.

"The verdict is still out in terms of economic value" of using the GH varieties, noted Calvin. A 1996 Penn State trial looked at four different varieties with GH and nonyellowing type alfalfa.

Growers should beware that only 50-60 percent of the GH seed will have the resistance, so parts of the plants can still be attacked. But there are benefits to using the GH alfalfa, even though the overall value is yet to be determined in the years to come. Also, only the first year of stands has been studied and more data are needed on subsequent years.

"Sprays still may be needed with resistant varieties," Calvin told the growers. Also, animal intake questions remain: will it be palatable to animals?

Another pest, according to Calvin, is the alfalfa weevil, which can prove devastating to stands. According to the Penn State entomologist, the weevil eats away at the surfaces of leaves, causing foliar problems that look like frost damage.

But because of the record rainfall, the weevil problem is "going to be minimal across the state — not a big concern in '97," said Calvin.

Bob Anderson, extension agronomy agent, provided an overview of EPA Worker Protection Standards and the requirements to training and communication of procedures to employees using pesticides. Most of the items are contained in Penn State Fact Sheet 12, "EPA Worker Protection Standards For Agricultural Pesticides," available at your local extension office.

At the crops day, Curran and Calvin also presented information on herbicide-tolerant crops, new herbicides for 1997, and transgenic crops in IPM. Other speakers provided an overview of the Pennsylvania Nutrient Management Law and pesticide storage and equipment cleaning.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference Feb. 28

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dairy farms in the Mid-Atlantic region face several challenges, including increased competition from producers in other regions and nations. Good management is a key factor in determining which farms survive tough economic times.

Dairy producers and industry personnel in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, and neighboring states can learn about critical issues and new developments in management at the 1997 Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference, "Thriving in a Global Economy," Feb. 28-March 1, at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center in Hershey.

The conference is being organized by industry personnel and faculty from the University of Delaware, the University of Maryland, Penn State, the University of Pennsylvania, Rutgers University, Virginia Tech, and West Virginia University.

Speakers and presenters will include experts from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, Cornell University, Kansas State University, Purdue University, the University of Minnesota, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Wisconsin and West Virginia University, as well as representatives from industry and successful dairy farmers in the region.

The first session, focusing on "Strategic Issues for Dairy Producers in the 21st Century," will begin at 1 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 28. Topics to be addressed include positioning yourself for dairying in the Mid-Atlantic region, dairy market and trade policy, and implications for the dairy industry of the industrialization of agriculture.

At 3 p.m., a session on "Business Management" will cover topics such as building and managing effective farm teams, using quality management to organize labor and work, risk management, and specialization and profit centers. After a reception and dinner, a roundtable discussion will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The discussion will cover risk management, using consultants and specialization.

At 7:50 a.m. on Saturday, March 1, specialists from several universities will participate in a session on "Getting the Most from Today's Nutrition Technology." Topics will include managing nutrition and health in the transition periods, managing carbohydrates for optimum profit and performance, and putting carbohydrates and protein togehter for optimum profit and performance. The second part of the session, beginning at 10:30 a.m., will address nutrition management for manipulating milk composition and controlling nutritional management at the feedbunk.

At 12:50 p.m., specialists will address "Reproduction and Health Issues Impacting Profitability," including managing for extended calving intervals, systematic breeding for dairy herds and vaccination programs. At 2:30 p.m., a special panel session featuring outstanding producers from states across the Mid-Atlantic will reveal "How They Make It All Work."

The program has been approved for American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists (ARPAS) credits and for Pennsylvania Continuing Education Credits for Veterinarians.

The $130 registration fee includes a copy of the proceedings, dinner, lunch, refreshment breaks and access to all conference activities. Registrations received after Feb. 14 cost $150.

For more information and a registration form, contact Dr. Michael O'Connor, The Pennsylvania State University, Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802, or call (814) 863-3913 or fax a message to (814) 865-7442.

Focus Is Dairy Reproduction At Genex Dairy Day

YORK (York Co.) — This year's Genex Dairy Day in York County will focus on reproductive management.

The meeting is scheduled Monday, Feb. 24, at the Seven Valleys Fire Hall beginning with milk, coffee, and donuts at 9:30 a.m.

Dr. Michael O'Connor, reproductive management specialist from Penn State, will be the featured speaker for the day's program. Dr. O'Connor will talk about estrous detection technologies, systematic or timed breeding programs, and pregnancy detection techniques.

The program is estrous detection technologies focus around activity monitors such as neck or leg pedometers and pressure-sensitive mount detection devices. Many of these heat detection systems work together with milking parlor equipment to record cow activity and report it to the parlor computer.

Systematic or timed breeding programs have been used to improve reproductive efficiency without placing as much emphasis on heat detection. Cows are examined to determine the presence of a corpus luteum (CL) and are injected with prostaglandin products. Gonadotropin (GnRH) Releasing Hormone plus prostaglandin is a new program involving appointment insemination.

Technologies for pregnancy diagnosis have also changed. Real-time ultrasound is one alternative, as is the milk progesterone test. Research is being conducted to identify and detect early pregnancy proteins in blood that would indicate pregnancy.

Many new ideas are available to manage reproduction in your dairy herd. Join us as Dr. O'Connor shares his knowledge on these topics. The Dairy Day program is sponsored by Genex, Inc. and is open to all interested persons. Ticket cost for the event is $3.50 per ticket. Reservations are requested on or before Feb. 17. Tickets are available from your Genex representative or from Tim Beck at (717) 840-7408.

Mifflin County Holstein Club Holds Banquet

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

ALLENSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — The Mifflin County Holstein Club met recently at the Country Village Restaurant in Allensville for its annual meeting.

The Club honored Jim Hostetter of Lewistown with the Distinguished Service Award. James O. Reed of Reedsville received recognition for having the highest herd BAA in the county.

Hostetter then had the honors of introducing featured speaker, former Mifflin Countian and longtime friend Jay Houser, president of the State Holstein Club Association.

Houser, a Centre County Holstein breeder and owner of Penn-Dell Farm in Spring Mills, outlined what he thought should be priorities in building a good herd of cows.

"No one builds a Super Bowl winner overnight, and no one builds a good herd overnight," Houser began. "The first decision is what do you want — an outstanding type cow, outstanding milk cow or a combination of both."

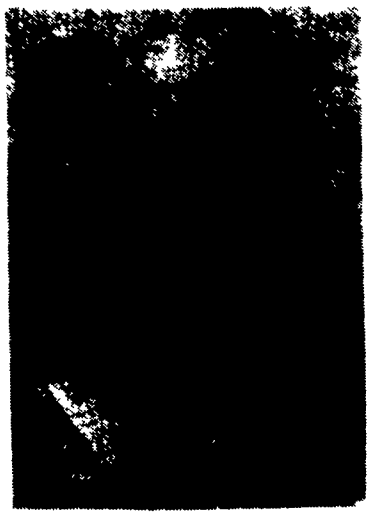
Houser also believes in finding the family of cows best suited for what you want, and building from there.

"I've had more success breeding out of a great family — more success over the long run. Being successful means breeding the type of cows you want."

In other business, Mark Byler, Matt Kline and Ed Glick were voted in as directors. Mike Ammon gave the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Report. Vernon Yoder reported on the youth and open show at the fair this past year.

Sue Sellers, in her Junior Membership report, said that 30 junior members showed at the fair this summer and several showed more than one animal.

Mark Byler, Matt Kline and Ed Glick were elected to serve on the Mifflin County Holstein Club board of directors.



James O. Reed of Reedsville accepted this award for having the highest herd BAA.

James Hostetter (right) was honored by the Mifflin County Holstein Club with the Distinguished Service Award. He is joined by Centre County dairyman Jay Houser who spoke at the banquet.

VIRGINVILLE (Berks Co.) — The Berks County 4-H Dairy Program will honor its members and volunteer leaders at its annual awards banquet to be held on Friday, March 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Virginville Grange Hall.

Outstanding record books, herd project journals, and round champions will be recognized as well as participants in dairy bowl and dairy judging.

Volunteer 4-H leaders will be recognized for their service. The winners of the Joyce Miller 4-H Career Advancement Award and the Charles D. Care Memorial Rookie of the Year Award will be announced.

The entertainment for the evening will be a presentation by Miss Angela Werley, Berks County and Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess.

Tickets can be obtained by contacting Gary Kurtz at (610) 944-7204. Ticket prices are $6.50 for adults, $4.50 for children 6 to 12 years and free for children 5 years and under. The deadline for ordering tickets is March 1.

State Stars Plan For Future As FFA Week Arrives

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The future of this country may be in the stars.

Literally.

Pennsylvania's brightest took the limelight at the Farm Show in January this year when two state Stars were honored for an FFA lifetime of achievement in their chapter, county, and region.

Michelle Cornman, Big Spring FFA, and Charles Aurentz, Cedar Crest FFA, were named the two state Star Farmer recipients during the 68th Mid-Winter FFA Convention, in which Keystone degrees were presented at Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Michelle, 17, daughter of Melvin and Betty Cornman, Carlisle, won State Star in Ag Production. Charles Aurentz, 17, son of Russell E. and Carol Aurentz, Lebanon, won State Star in Sales, Mechanics, and Service.

In telephone interviews with Lancaster Farming on Monday this week, the two state stars spoke about their involvement with FFA, their experience as officers, and their future plans.

Michelle, who serves as chapter president and Cumberland-Dauphin-Perry (CDP) regional president, has worked on a number of breeding and finishing swine and beef and goat finishing projects. She tends her projects on the family's 5-acre farmette in Carlisle.

Michelle completed supervised agricultural experience (SAE) projects in swine, which included caring for eight sows in her farrow-to-finish projects. Altogether her family manages 25 Duroc sows and five crossbred sows, with a couple of Yorkshires.

She began her projects in 1992. Michelle joined FFA through the Junior Ag Club in 7th grade.

Michelle said there are 28 members in her Big Spring Chapter in Newville. A highlight of her area presidency was serving on the leadership conference at the Penn Dale Conference Center in Carlisle in September. There, eight chapters from the CDP region converged to learn the tenets of FFA leadership.

The leadership conference "provided an opportunity to get out there and meet (FFA members) and catch up with them — find out what they're doing," said Michelle.

As her chapter president, a highlight experience was her participation in the Pet Therapy program, which provides learning support for children. The program also brought pigs over to the Greenridge Village Nursing Home in Newville. The residents "really enjoyed the experience," Michelle said.

Michelle E. Cornman

Charles Aurentz

In September, Michelle will travel to Springfield, Mass. to participate in the FFA regional star congest at the Big E.

Michelle plans to attend Penn State to major in dairy and animal science. "I grew up on a farm and worked with animals all of my life," she said. She intends to pursue a career as a feed nutritionist to work with feed companies or as an extension agent in feed ration planning, and with 4-H.

Because of her plans for college, Michelle was undecided about running for state president.

Charles Aurentz, 17, son of Russell E. and Carol Aurentz, Lebanon, the other state Star, has entirely different plans.

The Sales, Mechanics, and Service Star has worked in a steel foundry in Lebanon, called Pennsylvania Precision Cast Parts. The company makes cast parts out of stainless steel, copper, and nickel, including pumps, blower housings, and valves for mass water flow industries. Charles said his job at the foundry is helping to make the molds for the metal.

But his real plans including obtaining an associate's degree in auto mechanics at Harrisburg Area Community College (HACC) through their GM ASEP program.

"I've always had an interest in cars," said Charles. He noted that once the opportunity opened at the vo tech school, he applied for the program.

His HACC sponsor is Kleinfelter's Chevrolet. The program involves 10 weeks of college and 10 weeks of work. He hopes to obtain his auto inspection license.

At Kleinfelter's, Charles works as the "lube oil filter man," he noted.

Charles serves as Lebanon County president, which includes four chapters and 200 total members. He participated in the county leadership training school at Northern Lebanon County High School last September.

Charles indicated he has no plans to run for state office.

National FFA Week Feb. 15-22

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — FFA empowers students to develop and fulfill a vision for themselves, their communities, and their nation. FFA works hand in hand with agricultural education, but its impact reaches far beyond preparing employees for the food, fiber and natural resource systems. Students develop the premier leadership, personal growth and career success skills they need to win in agriculture or any other industry, and in life.

"Agriculture offers tremendous opportunities for young people," said National FFA Adviser Larry D. Case, "and FFA is helping them explore and take advantage of those opportunities. Even if they decide not to pursue one of the 200 careers in the business, science and technology of agriculture, they will benefit from the public speaking skills, self-confidence and leadership talents they develop in FFA."

FFA members across the United States, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will organize events and activities to foster awareness of agricultural education and support for FFA during National FFA Week, Feb. 15-22. National FFA Week is held each year during the week of George Washington's birthday to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture.

This year's theme, "FFA — Leaders with a Vision," promoted through communities nationwide, emphasizes how FFA enables students to develop leadership skills, prepares them to set goals and visions, and empowers them to achieve success. They are the leaders who will carry the agricultural industry and the nation into the next millenium.

State FFA Officer Team 'On Tour'

Andy Young
President, Pa. FFA

The lights go out, the audience conversation drops to silence, and then ... then the music begins, and it sounds an awfully lot like the "Mission Impossible" theme. Looking around curiously, the crowd seemed to expect individuals in trench coats and dark glasses to enter on the scene ... They are not disappointed.

What movie could bring such a scenario? No movie, just the 1996-1997 Pennsylvania FFA Officer team embarking on yet another chapter visit, speech, or conference. The group of 10 individuals is always at work and on the go in efforts to enthuse FFA members and potential members to excel, to acheive their fullest potential, to overcome obstacles, and to live by the year's theme — Conquer the Impossible!

The state officer team is "on tour," visiting chapters by region, with two officers per school, at each school for a full day, or for as long as there are classes to be visitied. The officers spend their time teaching leadership, teamwork, goal setting, career, and various other life skills. The team, since October, has been busily dashing from one school to another, five days per week, week after week in order to accomplish a goal which they set at the beginning of the year — to visit every chapter in the state, an accomplishment not yet achieved in the huge commonwealth of Pennsylvania. By the time May shows itself, the goal should be realized. So if you are, or know of, an FFA member who has not yet met with the state officers, be prepared to spend a day with them some time in the near future.

In the very near future, activities of the Pennsylvania FFA Association include hosting the Made for Excellence Conference (MFE), a state-wide leadership training conference operated by national FFA staff with the assistance of the state officer team. This event is taking place Feb. 15-16 as a bold beginning to Pennsylvania's observance of National FFA Week.

For additional recognition of National FFA Week, in February the Pennsylvania State FFA Officer team is celebrating by doing what they have been doing all year — making every effort to meet with students and fulfill the mission of the organization — "Make a positive difference in the lives of students." In addition to those events, though, the officers have also made plans to meet with the community. From story visits to pediatric wards, to addressing special school assemblies, to even donating blood, the officers are showing that they are working for the good of the FFA members and the good of their communities.

NOFA-NJ Expands Winter Conference Offerings

NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ. — The sixth annual NOFA-NJ winter conference will be held on March 1 at Cook College Student Center at Rutgers University in New Brunswick.

This year's conference has been expanded to include offerings to organic gardeners and will offer 20 workshops for varying levels of farming and gardening expertise.

The keynote speaker is to be Kathleen Merrigan, senior policy analyst in the Capitol Hill office of the Wallace Institute for Alternative Agriculture and member of the National Organic Standards Board (NOSB), which is advising the U.S. Department of Agriculture on the Organic Food Production Act (OFPA).

Kathleen is a former staff person on U.S. Sen. Patrick Leahy's Senate Agricultural Committee and assisted in the writing of the OFPA, which was part of the 1990 Farm Bill. The OFPA is responsible for national organic standards which should be going into effect this year. Kathleen's address is entitled, "Is the Government Friend or Foe? Dissecting USDA's Rules for Proposed National Standards."

In addition to the usual offerings for technical support for growers, there will be a special focus on marketing for farmers, along with several gardening workshops. A brief NOFA-NJ annual meeting will take place during lunch and the new boardmembers will be introduced.

For gardeners the offerings include a presentation by Master Gardener Marge Flory from Mercer County extension on backyard production of food, herbs and flowers all-season long for the beginner and small-scale gardener.

Her stepson, Rob Flory, from Howell Historical Farm, will lead a workshop on second season growing — maximizing the output of your garden by planning for a second season of growth.

Often many new and smaller scale gardeners do not know how to plan for as long a growing season as possible. Rob will tell you how.

There will be an end of day session with the popular NOFA-NJ organic garden doctors who will answer organic gardeners questions.

In response to the many informational requests NOFA-NJ receives about organic lawn care, Terry Higgins of Lawns-A-Live in Ridgewood, N.J. will be leading a workshop on the subject.

Offerings for farmers will include a presentation by Marianne Sarrantonio, formerly of the Rodale Institute and now at Slippery Rock University, who will give two workshops on selecting the right cover crop. Matthias Reisen, a herb grower from Avoca, N.Y. is coming back this year to give a workshop on commercial herb production and management, and a second one on more specific crop production techniques, and marketing strategy.

NOFA-NY certified organic growers Eric and Anne Nordell will offer a workshop on a whole farm approach to market gardening. They will discuss their approach to market gardening which includes integrating cover crops, composting, crop rotation and horsedrawn cultivation to reduce off-farm inputs and paid labor. They will have a detailed slide presentation illustrating cover cropping for weed control, animal-powered composting and designing a farm system with work horses in mind.

Several other offerings will cover greenhouse transplant production, deer fencing, cutflower growing and heirloom seed varieties.

Joel Rosen from Park Lake Farm in Mahtowa, Minn., will cover livestock and talk about his cooperative that has built a school bus poultry processing unit that can be moved from farm to farm.

For the marketing focus, there will be several offerings. Pam Mount, owner and operator of Terhune Orchards in Princeton, N.J., will give a workshop on operating a successful farm market. Specifically, he is to give tips on how to display, advertise and promote your products.

Barbara Wolf from the North Jersey Farmers Market Council and certified NOFA-NJ Norbert Hufnagl from Fields of Dreams Farm will talk about selling in farmers markets.

Hilary Baum, director of the Sustainable Cuisine Program at Windows and the Rainbow Room in New York City, will lead a panel on marketing to restaurants, which will include Yeves Vacheresse, executive chef of the Forrestal Hotel and Conference Center; Craig Shelton, executive chef, The Ryland Inn; and Patrick Cummings from Amazing Foods, a specialty distributor in Newark, N.J.

There will be a workshop on Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) with Karen Anderson from the Watershed Organic Farm in Pennington, Rick Sisti from Catalpa Ridge Farm in Newfoundland, and Mike Baki from the Genesis Farm CSA in Blairstown. They will discuss the ups and downs of CSAs.

Registration is $40 for nonmembers and $30 for members. To receive a conference registration brochure, call NOFA-NJ at (609) 737-6848.

Corn Planter, Drill Clinic Set

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Farmers can get the latest tips on repairing, adjusting, and maintaining corn planters and grain drills by watching a satellite teleconference to be broadcast live on Tuesday, Feb. 18 from 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The Corn Planter and Drill Clinic Satellite Conference, which will be held before an audience at Penn State's Ag Arena across the street from Beaver Stadium on the University Park Campus, is sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and will be downlinked live at many Penn State Cooperative Extension county offices. Anyone wishing to attend in person should plan to arrive before 12:30 p.m.

"People who view the broadcast from remote locations or from their living rooms will have front-row, fifty-yard line seats," said Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate in Penn State's Department of Agronomy. "We also will be taking call-in questions on a special toll-free line, so if we miss something, of if farmers want more information on a given topic, we'll gladly field those questions."

A farmer's crop yield depends on plant populations in the field. "If your planting equipment doesn't plant at the proper rate because it isn't correctly maintained or adjusted, you can't recover that loss later in the growing season," says Hoffman. "Farmers who watch this teleconference will be better prepared to adjust their planters or drills for the best stands of corn, soybeans, small grains and other crops."

As March approaches, the Pennsylvania FFA Association looks forward to a conference which is unique to this state, the State Legislative Leadership Conference (SLLC), March 9-11 in Harrisburg. During this three-day event, FFA members from across the state will take part in legislative simulation, visit the state capitol, and meet with state legislators, to name just a few of the highlights. These students will leave the conference with a better knowledge of the legislative process and the workings of government, not to mention a few new friends from across the state.

Then the year moves on toward the annual highlight, the state convention at Penn State in June. Until that time, though, we take one step at a time in that direction, each step carefully placed in order to most effectively fulfill the mission of the officer team and the FFA — "to make a positive difference in the lives of students."

Pork Producers May See Economic 'Salvation' In Exports

and pay for it, according to Moore, entirely by the sales of the nitrogen, oil, and natural gas they produce. "They're spending every penny they earn off these exports on that food," Moore said.

Moore spoke to more than 120 swine producers and agri-industry representatives on Wednesday morning during the educational session of the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council's 19th Annual Keystone Pork Expo at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

In fact, in 1996, the U.S. became the second largest pork exporter in the world, with more meat exports than imports, according to Judy McDonnell, director of Pork Quality Assurance Marketing for the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), Des Moines, Iowa.

McDonnell told producers at the expo that the U.S. had a "banner year" for pork exports in 1996, exporting more than $1 billion worth of pork products to several leading markets, including Japan, Hong Kong/China, Korea, Russia, and Mexico.

Moore told the producers that exports will continue to expand. "The whole Pacific Rim is going to be a growth market," he said, as Japan and other countries lower their import tariffs.

The Korean export market will open in March this year and will demand quality America-made pork.

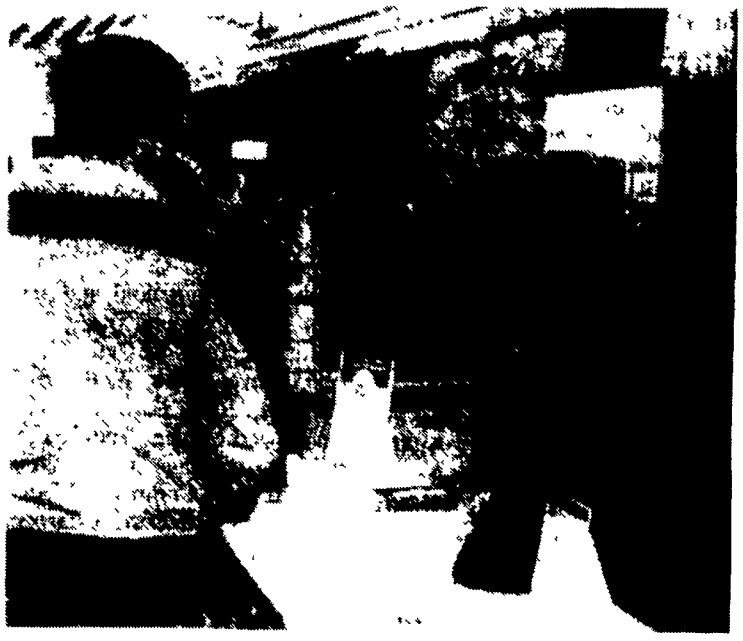
As a consequence, according to McDonnell, packers will demand that producers create a product that is residue-free, safe, free of physical hazards, and follow the NPPC-created Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) Program guidelines.

"Packers will be looking very hard at your hogs for drug residues and physical hazards," said McDonnell.

The PQA marketing director said that one Midwest packer found "barbed wire" in the ham of an animal that went to slaughter. Others found needles broken off in hogs, buckshot in the meat, and other items that most processors will not tolerate.

As a result, the PQA program instituted by the NPPC in 1989 will become more stringently enforced by packers. By following the PQA guidelines, residue violations and physical hazards can be eliminated in swine.

Simply put, the PQA levels ensure that careful records, including identification of treated animals and other items, are kept. The PQA has helped to boost the marketability of meat to other countries.



In 1996, the U.S. became the second largest pork exporter in the world, with more meat exports than imports, according to Judy McDonnell, director of Pork Quality Assurance Marketing for the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), Des Moines, Iowa. McDonnell told producers at the expo that the U.S. had a "banner year" for pork exports in 1996, exporting more than $1 billion worth of pork products to several leading markets, including Japan, Hong Kong/ China, Korea, Russia, and Mexico.

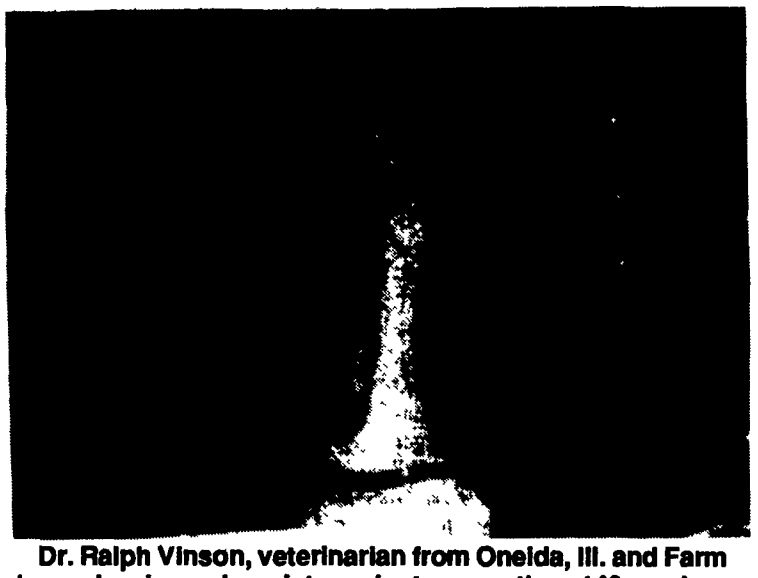
As a result, according to McDonnell, the exports have put in producer's pockets an amount ranging from $2-$3 per head of swine raised annually the past 10 years.

The hazard analysis critical control points (HACCP) segment of the program follows many of the guidelines already put in place by large processors. HACCP, noted McDonnell, was developed originally by NASA to ensure safe food for the astronauts.

A pilot PQA program is being funded by the NPPC for several states, including Pennsylvania. The program has invited 16 producers to participate in the program, put in place in a four-month timeframe beginning in May. The program needs several more participants. Producers should contact Ken Kephart at Penn State at (814) 863-3671 if they want to participate.

Altogether, said McDonnell, there now more than 18,000 producers in the U.S. enrolled in the PQA certification program with 92.5 million hogs for a total of 62 percent of the hogs marketed. Producers enrolled in Level III in Pennsylvania now number 348. About 100 are enrolled at levels I and II.

To increase exports, producers must have achieved Level III status, noted McDonnell.



Dr. Ralph Vinson, veterinarian from Oneida, Ill. and Farm Journal swine columnist, spoke to more than 140 producers at the expo about meeting the challenges posed by PRRS and avoiding pitfalls in herd health.

At the expo, H. Louis Moore provided his economic outlook for the pork industry.

In general, while the outlook for the general economy and ag economy is good and no recession is in sight for 1997, consumer debt is increasing. Consumers now hold in credit card bills about 18 percent of what they earn, according to Moore. While there are no immediate worries about the economy, questions remain about how long the current gains can continue on Wall Street and how long the third largest growth period in U.S. history without a recession will last.

For grain crops, only soybean production is increasing, while corn and other crops continue to drop. General use for corn continues to increase in all categories.

Year by year, corn carryover stocks continue to remain small. This past September, stocks were only enough to hold supply for about two and a half weeks to meet demand. "We're living more hand to mouth than we ever did before," said Moore.

"I would expect growers are going to plant a lot of corn and loads and loads of soybeans," he said.

U.S. still leads the world in production of corn and soybeans. Corn production is 257 million metric tons (MMT), followed by China at 102 MMT and Brazil at 33 MMT. Soybean production is 70 MMT, followed by Brazil at 26 MMT and China at 16 MMT.

Increasingly, the amount of hog farms are dropping in the U.S. In the last two years, 24 percent of farms have less hogs than two years ago. "How long is it going to be before we're down to nothing?" Moore asked. In 1978, there were 632,360 farms in the U.S.; in 1995, there were only 182,700 farms.

Litter rate for the hog farms that remain continue to go up, now at 8.60 pigs per litter. Pig inventory is not overstocked, according to the Dec. 1 Pig Crop Report from USDA. All hogs and pigs are down 4 percent, breed inventory is down 3 percent, the Dec.-Feb. report is down 1 percent, and the March-May outlook is down 2 percent. Small hog inventories and cheaper feed prove good news for producers.

In all, only 3 percent of all hog farms have more than 2,000 sows or more, but they comprise 51 percent of all marketing of hogs, according to Moore. The hog industry is "now almost a mirror image of the chicken industry," Moore said.

In 1996, retail prices topped $2.35 per pound, lower than the year before, according to Moore. U.S. meat production will rise 1-2 percent in 1997, but hog production will decline 3 percent, to about 17.5 billion pounds of product, according to the economist.

On the other hand, broiler production will be up 6-7 percent or even more, from 26.4 billion pounds in 1996 to 28 billion pounds or more for 1997, according to projections. Broiler meats are way ahead of pork and beef in the total market share because they are cheaper for consumers, according to Moore. Total meat production will be 78.1 billion pounds, up from 75.6 billion pounds last year.

Because of the continuing improvement in pork exports, hog prices should stay in the mid-50 cent per pound range through late summer, according to Moore. But with the withdrawal of government support directives for many livestock industries, there will be a "lot of volatility and a lot of complaining," Moore noted.

The Challenge Of PRRS

The key to successfully dealing with the brutal pork disease Porcine Reproductive and Respiratory Syndrome or PRRS is handling gilts properly, including proper isolation and timing of PRRS vaccination, according to one widely known veterinarian.

Dr. Ralph Vinson, veterinarian from Oneida, Ill. and Farm Journal swine columnist, spoke to more than 140 producers at the expo about meeting the challenges posed by PRRS and avoiding pitfalls in herd health.

Vinson, who works as a consultant for family hog farms in northwest Illinois as well as Iowa and Missouri, indicated that not only is his goals to help with herd health, but his mission is to help family farms get up to date on the methods of this modern industry, where giant operations such as Cargill, Murphy Farms, Land O' Lakes, and other competitors exist "next door," he said. Fighting the situation of even bigger and bigger enterprises "won't help us at all," Vinson said.

To do so, the small producers must implement strategies to deal with the devastating effects of PRRS, which is extremely difficult to control.

PRRS is caused by a virus which simply did not exist prior to 1986, Vinson said. It was once known as swine "mystery disease," since it resembled other types of diseases such as pseudorabies, which follows different, more effective treatment strategies.

The chronic respiratory disease that effects pigs destroys the alveolar macrophages of lungs. Macrophages are the giant white blood cells that eat dust, bacteria, and other contaminants that the pig breathes in.

The infection itself is not so crucial so much as the secondary infections, including pneumonia and encephalitis, that can occur. Symptoms include sows that go off feed, become slow in moving, and have persistent coughing and "thumping" (hard breathing) in the nursery. They are non-responsive to conventional treatment and show stunted growth.

There were increases in returns, abortions, stillbirths, and mummies in the sows, encephalitis in piglets, and other problems with PRRS.

Having PRRS in a herd can be "neverending," said Vinson, because even though some sows develop immunity, the immunity does not consistently sustain itself.

For producers in the country a few years ago, dealing with $29 hogs, PRRS, and high debt loads proved devastating, according to the veterinarian. So something had to be done — and studies showed that some strains of the virus were more virulent and deadly than others.

The secondary infections that set in include Salmonella and swine influenza and others. At one time, the veterinarian believed there may have been a new virus in southeast Iowa — but which he believes now is just a different strain of PRRS.

In one herd in southeast Iowa, a 1,200 farrow-to-finish operation, the operators were losing 60 sows per week. Another 1,000-sow herd was having lots of problems because of an improper vaccination program — the vaccination program actually caused more problems than it attempted to solve.

But the veterinary researchers found, as a result, proper ways to deal with the virus. There are good virus diagnostic programs. One that is used most effectively is immuno-histo- chemistry, or IHC, which looks at the lung tissue to look for PRRS. IHC is "most valuable for quick diagnosis," he said.

To deal with PRRS effectively, producers must get a "real accurate diagnosis," said Vinson. Also, the sowherd must be stabilized, isolated, and vaccinated. The herd additions must be properly prepared and the symptoms must be stopped, along with any shedding of the virus to the pigs.

Vinson has found it is important not to vaccinate the sows that already show the symptoms and any pigs that have PRRS, because a modified live virus is used which could add to the problems. Pigs already incubated could make them severely sick.

Vinson told producers to simply depopulate that segment, not the whole house. He emphasized the importance of working with a veterinarian. By getting the situation under control, losses can be offset.

Vaccinate the whole herd every quarter. Prepare the gilts in "gilt-development" barns with all-in, all-out management. The gilts should be isolated from the world, he said, to prevent them from contracting PRRS.

For producers in general, they can either stay the way they are, if they are doing well in the business, or they can increase their herd size to 7,000-10,000 sows. Another option is simply to specialize and either be a farrower or a feeder. This could help producers deal more effectively with gradual changes in the market.

Pork Awards

At the expo, the state pork producers together with the NPPC honored S. Regnal "Reg" Leibensperger of Deer Lake Inn, Deer Lake, with an award for emphasizing pork on the restaurant menu.

Leibensperger said that there are several items on the menu at Deer Lake, including ham steak, pork chop, barbecued pork strips, pork medallions, fresh ham, and smoked pork chops.

Also, the Junior Public Speaking Contest honored several youth with awards. Winner of the junior division was Cathy Levan, Hamburg. Cathy, 12, daughter of Paul and Shirley Levan, is in the 7th grade at Hamburg Middle School. She spoke about "Pork: The Other White Meat." She belongs to three different 4-H clubs in Berks county, including swine, beef, and sheep.

The intermediate champion honor went to Nathan Elkin, 14, son of Sam and Paula Elkin, Marion Center. Nathan, in the 9th grade at Marion Center High School, spoke about "Pigs In Harmony With the Environment." Nathan is involved with the Northwestern Livestock 4-H and won as a junior several years ago at the expo.

Senior champion honor went to April Koch, Coudersport. April, 15, is the daughter of Michael and Cynthia Koch. She is in the 10th grade at Northern Potter High School and spoke about "Squeezing the Profits From Swine." April is a member of Pigs R Us 4-H Club.

Judges for the show, according to Bruce Lemmon, ag instructor at Cumberland Valley High School and contest chairman, were Mike Firestine, senior vice president and senior ag loan officer at Lebanon Valley Bank, and Paul Bohnert, student ag teacher at Big Spring High School.

In the Keystone Pork Bowl Contest, chaired by Linda Spahr, Lebanon County took home first place honors, beating Berks County 160-135. Third place went to Cumberland County, who lost to Berks, 125-120.

Lancaster County Dairy Days Announced

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County Dairy Days will be held Tuesday, February 25 and March 4 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, Lancaster, Pa. The program is different each day.

The program on February 25 features Doug Reinemann, an internationally recognized expert on milking and milking systems from Wisconsin who will talk about designing and operating milking systems so they milk efficiently and clean properly. He will also be offering performance standards that will help farmers evaluate themselves, their workers and their milking systems.

Dairy trends and outlook will be addressed by Robert Yonkers of Penn State, and a panel of dairy producers will share their thoughts on what it will take to dairy in the 21st century.

On March 4 the emphasis will be on the rumen and its importance and what it takes to keep the rumen functioning well. The affect of weather and growing and harvesting conditions on forage quality, dry matter intakes and milk production will also be discussed. Speakers will be Carl Brown of FM Browns, and Les Vough from the University of Maryland.

Another major emphasis that day will be reproduction; with emphasis on nutrition, heat detection, records, diseases, vaccines, hormonal use and therapy, etc. Speakers will be Michael O'Connor, of Penn State plus local veterinarians and nutritionists.

Exhibits are open for inspection at 9:00 a.m. and the program begins at 9:45 a.m. Lunch is available and tickets can be purchased at the door before 11:00 a.m. Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact Glenn Shirk at (717) 394-6851 in advance of your participation or visit.

Dairy One Formed, Board Of Directors Named

ITHACA, NY — Dairy One, the newly formed service organization with the mission of bringing about needed change in the dairy industry, recently held its first board meeting in Ithaca, New York, at which the board of directors was named.

Eight prominent producers from the Northeast were selected to serve on the board of Dairy One, the venture created through two strong organizations, Northeast Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and Dairylea Cooperative, Inc. Those serving as officers are: President, Hal Bodwell, a 250-cow producer from Kensington, New Hampshire; Vice President, Clyde Rutherford, an 80-cow producer from Otego, New York; Treasurer, Doug Young, a producer milking almost 700 cows in Union Springs, New York, and Secretary, Keith Whittaker, a 130-cow producer from Whitney Point, New York. Other members of the Dairy One board are: Jennifer Huntington of Cooperstown, New York milking over 250 cows; Dan Sheldon, a producer milking over 600 cows from Salem, New York; Dave Chamberlain; a 300 cow producer from Wyoming, NY; and Dick Popp, a producer with over 2,500 cows from Castile, New York.

At the meeting, the board officially adopted Cooperative Dairy One, Inc. as the name of the organization. The board also set the direction of the new entity, which is to drive and oversee the changes that are necessary to assure that the Northeast remains a strong and viable region for dairying and dairy services.

"Through Dairy One, we are constructing a leading-edge information delivery system for agriculture that will best position farmers for the challenges that lie ahead," said Bodwell. "Much change is needed in order to maintain a thriving dairy industry in our region. Dairy One will drive this change and ensure that it gets done."

This board meeting also marked the official launch of the new Milk Check Laboratories sample transportation system. The newly implemented system streamlines milk sample transportation for its customers throughout New York State and promises faster turnaround time for some Northeast members and more timely results for Producer Payment customers.

Dairy One is a platform on which the dairy industry can build. While it was founded by Northeast DHIA and Dairylea, the door is open for others to join in and gain efficiencies and synergy needed by dairy farmers. Dairy farmer driven and directed, Dairy One will offer a unique and valuable service for producers in the Northeast.

these additional funds the governor is requesting to protect natural resources. Preserving farmland provides needed benefits to the community, prevents development, allows the land to continue generating taxes for state and local governments, and protects and perpetuates the farming economy and its contributions to the region and state.

In addition, farmland preservation provides open space and continues to protect this resource for the future without creating additional tax burdens, like "fee simple" purchases of land.

The Rural Legacy Program bill, as currently written, would use Program Open Space money and $90 million in obligation bonds in selected focus areas for conservation, historical, environmental and agricultural land protection easements and or fee simple purchases. We agree that this program can have a place in protecting natural resources.

Yet, we also feel that protecting agriculture and open space is a statewide desire, and not just a need in selected focus areas. In fairness to the rest of the state and committed agricultural producers who have voluntarily preserved their farms in districts for years, we cannot support a new, unproven concept without the inclusion of additional funds for the nationally recognized land preservation program the state already has in place. At the present time, the Maryland Ag Land Preservation Foundation program uses just 14.5 percent of the available funds designated for Program Open Space, the Heritage Conservation Fund and farmland preservation which come from the state transfer tax. It is high time for an increase.

Technology Challenges and Choices

DIXIE BURRIS
Director of Laboratory Service and Membership Development

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — What key changes will drive the future of Pa. DHIA?

That's the question members and technicians have posed to the Pa. DHIA board.

Not surpisingly, technology was at the top of the list. Technology is a two-edged sword.

On one hand, it has sharpened competition between information service providers, including competing DHIAs. On the other hand, it has opened a whole new set of opportunities for our association to serve members more quickly and efficiently.

For our association, making the choices that stem from diverse technologies is complicated by an increasingly heterogeneous membership. Just choosing the means of communication — print, face-to-face, e-mail, telephone, fax, electronic bulletin boards, ARIS, or the Web — is a challenge.

Association members want instant communication, and on their terms.

Members themselves are daunted by the possibilities.

Many feel they are being asked to imagine the unimaginable. And many feel the times are leaving them behind.

Picking online services is like being on a diving board anticipating the excitement of something new, and fearing it, and realizing eventually you'll have to just jump in to see what it's all about.

Jim Boyer, Pa. DHIA's date processing manager, will be putting on two workshops at the DHIA annual meeting on Feb. 13 and 14.

His subject is computer technology. He'll try to clarify the technology options that are most intimidating to new and prospective computer buyers — such as what hardware and software to consider from on-farm computing — focusing on the blur of changing technology in the context of your farm goals.

While the range of alternatives may seem challenging, even overwhelming, the presentation will illustrate that it need not be.

A second workshop will concentrate on exploiting the Internet. It will explain what's available online, how to get started, and where to go next.

Attendance at the workshops will be limited.

The first will be held Feb. 13 from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m., on computer hardware and software purchasing decisions. The second workshop, on exploiting the Internet, will follow the annual meeting.

Sign up now. Spaces are going fast. Call Dixie or Judy at 1-800-344-8378, or send in your registration form to Pa. DHIA.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Sustainable Ag Honors

BriarPatch Organic Farm in Mifflinburg.

Earlier in the day, PASA members voted the following to serve as directors: Don Weaver, a Lancaster County dairyman; Paul Hosuer, a Chester County fruit and vegetable grower; Lee Bentz, an Adams County farmer and representative from the PA Department of Agriculture; Carolyn Sachs, College of Agricultural Sciences at Penn State; and Kim Knorr-Tait of Tair Farm Foods, Centre County.

The several hundred participants at this year's conference could choose from over 20 concurrent sessions on topics as diverse as the kinds of farm operations represented — Using Compost for Disease Control; Weed Control; What Every Farmer Needs To Know To Convince The Public To Buy Locally Grown; Approaches to Agricultural Literacy; Marketing Pastured Poultry; Improving Corn Production and Environmental Stewardship with Narrow Rows; Community/Farm Food and Marketing Initiatives.

PASA min conferences centered on developing cooperatives, preserving farmland, grazing profitability, soil building techniques, and management and market strategies.

PASA Executive Director Timothy Bowser opened the conference with welcoming remarks. Later he said the future for sustainable farming is on the rise, evidenced by the growth in the number of people attending the conference each year.

"The composition of the audience at the conference has changed since five years ago," Bowser added. "We're more diverse, more mainstream. There are more nonfarmers involved. It's important to make the connection to the nonfarm sector. Times are changing. We're coming up with innovative ways to sell our products, embarking on new marketing strategies like value added marketing."

Bower's welcome was followed by keynote speaker Tom Elliott from the N-Bar Land Cattle Company, Grass Range, Montana. As general manager of one of Montana's oldest, most diversified farm and ranching operations, Elliott oversees the organic production of grains, seed and produce. The 48,000-acre ranch also supports a registered Angus herd.

Elliott joined Titus Martin, a dairy farmer from Franklin County and founder of the Franklin County Graziers, to present a session entitled "Starting a Farm Improvement Club: Farmers Helping Farmers." Both discussed how farmers can start farmer-to-farmer groups to better their grazing operation. Martin said 22 counties in Pennsylvania have farm improvement clubs, groups formed to share ideas, encourage participates and network with other agencies.

Steven and Jackie Marsh of Emlenton, Clarion County, said they went to the PASA conference to learn about vegetable and dried flower production for direct marketing. They appreciated the regional meetings where they met other farmers from their area interested in sustainable agriculture.

Doyle Freeman, a sheep farmer from Lebanon County, helped man the PASA booth at the farm show this year.

"This year, there seemed to be more people wanting to utilize the organization's resources. A lot of farmers wanted to know about the organization and what it's going to do for them."

Chester Holstein Tour Scheduled

COCHRANVILLE (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Holstein Club has scheduled their annual tour to Lancaster and Lebanon Counties this year. The date is Tuesday, March 4, and the bus will be leaving from Rodney Bare's farm at 8:15 a.m.

The first stop is at Mark and Kris Welk's family farm at Quarryville. Here the large framed cows with beautiful udders include show cows with high type that include 19 Excellent and 30 Very Good. Of special interest is an EX-94 Blackstar. The herd is housed in a tie stall barn with mattresses, and the herd of mostly Canadian breeding has a rolling herd average of 21,500m 850f 730p. They farm 300 acres.

The next farm is at Robert Rohrer and Sons, Washington Boro. Here, the father and four sons milk 750 cows with a herd average of 22,200m and figure a feed cost per CWT of milk at $4.63. They have four milking groups and three dry cows groups with very extensive records on milk produce per worker and number of services per pregancy. In addition to the dairy herd, they fatten 3,600-4,000 hogs per year.

The Paul B. Zimmerman farm at Ephrata is next. They milk 51 cows in a tie stall barn with a BAA of 111.7 and a herd average of 19,650m 832f. They have 25 EX and 24 VG cows including 8 Astro Jets, all but one scored EX. This herd also features Canadian breeding and the service sires include many Starbuck sons.

At Kirby and Sheryl Horst and family in Newmanstown they have 50 cows milking in a tie stall barn with a BAA 108.4 and a 22,000m herd average. Of special interest: a VG-88 Converse that has been contracted for 60 embryo's. She is the 7th generation VG or EX. 12 bulls from her went into AI, 2 went to Japan. This is normal as 12 to 15 bulls are sold into AI each year.

The last stop is at the Nelson Sensenig Family farm at Newmanstown. Here they have 92 cows that average 34,600m on 3x. Ten cows are over 40,000m and 4 cows are over 50,000m.

Supper will be provided at an area restaurant. The tour planners expect to be back home by 7:30 p.m to 8 p.m. Ticket price is $15.00 per person, and reservations should be made early because the bus will fill up. Call Duane Hershey for reservations no later than Tuesday, Feb. 25. His phone number is 593-5998 or 593-0399.

Silage Conference Plays To Sold-Out Crowd

ference made clear — from the field to the feedbunk.

Actually, it went beyond that range to include considerations from laboratory testing accuracy to particle size considerations.

From the conference's Tuesday opening welcoming remarks from state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius to a post-conference tour of the New Holland Plant in Lancaster, it was filled from morning to night with talks and discussions covering a gamut of issues about silages.

Speakers included local extension agents, such as Galen Kopp from Lebanon County, who talked about custom harvesting of forages and feed values as compared to average values for self-harvested crops; and Glenn Shirk from Lancaster who discussed dairy cow feed management considerations on the farm when harvesting and ensiling a new crop.

Several speakers were extension specialists with Penn State University, such as Greg Roth who talked about corn hybrids for silage; and A. Jud Heinrichs who talked about particle size considerations.

Speakers were from land-grant universities within and outside of the Northeastern states region that forms the foundation of NRAES academic support.

Some speakers also were from the agribusiness sector, which helps sponsor such conferences.

The majority of the audience was comprised of agribusiness representatives and university people, though about a third represented dairy farms, according to a cursory review of the list of registrants.

The audience also hailed from every state in the Northeast, except Rhode Island, as well as many Mid Western states, Southern states, Ontario and Quebec in Canada.

According to NRAES staff the "Silage: Field to Feedbunk" conference was the first conference it organized that resulted in a sold-out audience. It was sold-out at least a week prior.

The 465-page soft-cover book of conference proceedings is available now for $30, plus shipping, from NRAES, which is headquartered on the Cornell University campus in Ithaca, N.Y.

NRAES can be contacted by writing to them at 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, N.Y. 14853-5701; by phone (607) 255-7654; by fascimile machine (607) 254-8770; or by electronic mail at NRAES@CORNELL.EDU

The service offers a catalog of publications on many issues under general topic headings, such as general agriculture, aquaculture, agrichemical handling, fruit and vegetable production, greenhouses, building construction, livestock and poultry, dairy, waste management, farm safety, forestry and wildlife, home,and 4-H.

Publications range from handbooks, manuals and guides about specific areas of interest to books containing papers and reports made during such symposiums and conferences as the one this past week at Hershey.

NRAES itself is an unique arm of land-grant university cooperative extension.

It has 13 member land-grant universities and is "... an official activity of Cooperative Extension of 13 land grant universities and the United States Department of Agriculture."

Started in the mid 1970s, it was formed primarily with the mission to support cooperative extension university agricultural engineering programs in those 13 states — the universities of Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Main, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont; and Penn State, Rutgers, Cornell, and West Virginia universities.

The mission changed slightly in 1988, after some of the universities lost their ag engineering programs, and extension directors and university faculty and staff sought to widen the scope of NRAES, and to broaden the appeal and disciplines involved, as well as to make the service more useful to non-engineering faculty.

It has since had the mission, "To assist the Northeast cooperative extension system by developing engineering-related publications and educational events helpful in achieving regional extension objectives."

To peform this mission, NRAES must also make money to support itself and its staff. It does this by acting as a marketer of publications of the research and data that is submitted, it collects, edits, compiles, publishes and distributes.

It is more or less the technical publishing clearinghouse for agriculture, though it contracts out actual printing and layout and design services.

It also must charge for the services it provides, and generates about 80 percent of its funding needs through conference and publication fees.

Also it provides other valuable services for agribusiness. For example, Certified Crop Advisers could earn continuing education credits, as well as those seeking continuing ed credits recognized by the American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists.

For some farmer-productionists, some of the material submitted at Hershey may have been too technical, though speakers generally provided plain-English conclusion statements of what they had just explained.

Cornucopia Provides Network For Legislators, Ag Promoters

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The annual meeting the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations was held in the east wing of the state Capitol Monday, followed by its Cornucopia event.

Elected president of the PSCFO was Earl Fink, who took over the position vacated by Laura England. Fink has been serving as president of the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers.

England was presented with a plaque in appreciation of her work for the PSCFO.

Elected vice president was Roxy Levan, a member of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and active in committee work and leadership.

Bob Junk, president of the Pennsylvania Farmer's Union, and chairman of the Nutrient Management Advisory Board to the State Conservation Commission, was named secretary treasurer.

The Cornucopia event that followed is considered a networking event, in that members of the PSCFO invite members of the state Legislature to join them to discuss issues of concern and to informally educate each other about their respective positions on the issues.

Different member associations and commodity groups were invited to set up displays.

The event was held in a side room off of the East Rotunda and several tables of foods were set up in the room, as well as several display tables from organizations such as the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs, the Greater Pittsburgh Community Food Bank, and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

Although the Senate was in session at the time, House members were free and some members of the Senate was able to spend some time visiting with representatives of PSCFO-member organizations.

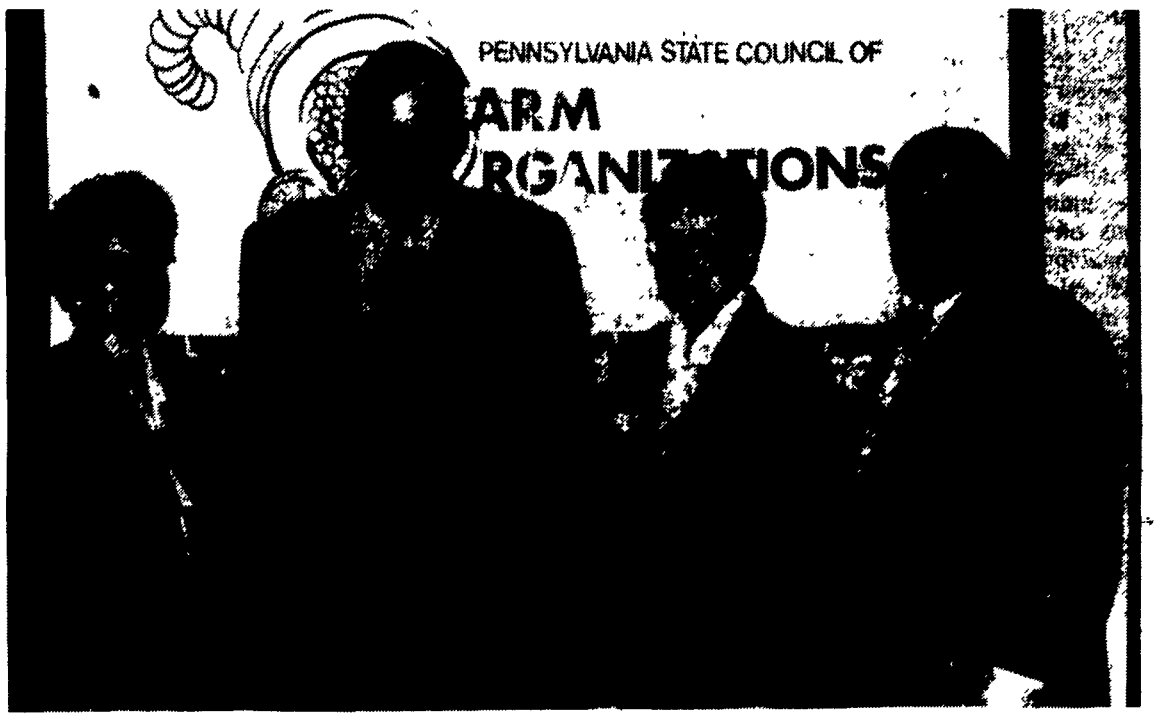
A specific agenda of legislative goals has yet to be announced by the Agricultural and Rural Affairs committees of the House and Senate. The Cornucopia provides an opportunity for leaders of the farm organizations to aquaint themselves with legislators and to provide information and background on issues that may or may not require legislative attention.

Republican members of the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee are Senators Daniel Delp of York, chairman; Noah Wenger of Lancaster, vice chairman; Edward Helfrick, Northumberland County; James Rhoades, Schuylkill County; Roger Madigan, Bradford County; and Terry Punt, of Franklin County.

Democratic members of the committee are Senators Patrick Stapelton, minority chairman; Michael O'Pake, of Berks County; John Wozniak, of Cambria County; and Richard Kasunic, of Fayette County.

The House Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee is lead by Rep. Raymond Bunt, majority chairman, and Rep.Bill Lloyd, minority chairman. Rep. Ed Krebs is majority vice chairman, and Rep. Sara Steelman, minority vice chairman.

Representatives of the Pennsylvania Association of Regional Food Banks meet with state Legislators at the Cornucopia. From the left is Joy Rothermel of the Greater Pittsburgh Community Food Bank, Rep. Tom Michlovic, Lisa Scales, and Tim Whelan, president of the state association, and the South Central Region chapter.



From the left, Laura England holds a plaque presented to her in appreciation for her work as president of the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations, and stands with newly elected president Earl Fink, vice president Roxy Levan, and Bob Junk, secretary/treasurer.

Maryland Dairy Heifers Exported To Trinidad

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that a Kent County farmer has recently negotiated the sale of eight pregnant Jersey dairy heifers to the University of the West Indies.

The heifers are valued at approximately $20,000 and will be used to improve dairy cattle production throughout the Caribbean.

"This sale of heifers to the West Indies is another example of how our international marketing efforts are continuing to expand. It also demonstrates that Maryland genetics are in demand around the world," said Riley.

"The heifers will be used as seed stock to strengthen the genetic line and to increase the dairy population. The offspring from these eight dairy animals could be distributed throughout the 20-member countries of the University of the West Indies.

This sale may well lead to significant opportunities for Maryland livestock exporters not only in Trinidad and Tobago but throughout the Caribbean," Riley said.

This sale is a result of concerted efforts by the Maryland Department of Agriculture to work closely with government agencies and academic institutions throughout the Caribbean. The exporter had accompanied Maryland Department of Agriculture International Marketing staff on a trade mission to the region. By working closely with the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Kent County farmer has already exported cattle to Saudi Arabia, Colombia and Ecuador.

The eight heifers will be trucked from Maryland to Miami and will then be air freighted to Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. This shipment is expected to take place within 15 days.

"At the Maryland Department of Agriculture, we are pursuing a number of initiatives to further develop export opportunities for Maryland livestock producers throughout the Caribbean and Latin America, including dairy cattle farmers, beef cattle farmers and hair-type sheep farmers," said Riley.

The University of the West Indies College of Agriculture is based in Trinidad and Tobago. The University of the West Indies attracts researchers, students and agricultural specialists from 20 different Caribbean countries as well as from Europe, Africa and Latin America.

Founded when Trinidad and Tobago were British colonies, the University of the West Indies is the preeminent university for the study of tropical agriculture. One of the University's long-term goals is to promote the diversification and profitability of agricultural production throughout the Caribbean.

Jones Named

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge appointed Bradley R. Jones of Camp Hill, Cumberland County, to serve as executive director of the Hardwoods Development Council, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

The Hardwoods Development Council [illegible] petitiveness of the hardwood industry, and works with managing forest resources. It moved to the Agriculture Department from the Department of Community and Economic Development (DCED) on Jan. 1. With forests being a renewable resource, similar to other agriculture crops, the move allows the department to work more closely with the industry.

Jones has been environmental issues manager for the American Petroleum Institute since 1993. In that position, he worked with legislative issues, managed research projects, and developed public service events to increase the effectiveness of the recycling

"We at the New York Farm Show care about this state's number one industry — agriculture," said Scott Grigor, New York Farm Show manager. "Farmers who want to keep up on the latest piece of equipment, tillage management, or whatever their farm operation needs can find it at the New York Farm Show."

Patterned after the 1996 show's Precision Decision focus, this year's New York Farm Show will offer day-long access to the World Wide Web. Instructions on doing Web searches will be given by Mike Stratton, American Agriculturist computer columnist and farm management specialists with western New York Cornell Cooperative Extension. This display will be in the Center of Progress building.

Just for kids: While you explore modern ag technology, your children between the ages of 4 and 13 can learn about farm safety. In a special Farm Safety Days for Kids program, conducted by the New York Center for Agricultural on Friday and Saturday (Feb. 21-22) at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., children ages 8 through 13 will learn about animal safety, small equipment safety, chemical safety, and First on the Scene/First Aid. (Registration begins a half hour prior to each session in the Empire Room of the Arts and Home Center building. Registration is limited to 80 children.)

Younger children, those between the ages of 4 and 7, can view a farm safety puppet show, identify hazards on a toy farm, and color posters and placemats in an art area.

New York Farm Show is pleased to sponsor the 7th annual Toy Show Auction on Friday, Feb. 21, at 6 p.m. More than 250 toys will be auctioned, with proceeds going to the New York FFA.

Tickets are available free from New York state farm equipment dealers or by writing New York Farm Show, P.O. Box 3470, Syracuse, NY 13220. Include a self-addressed, stamped, legal envelope.

Milk Refund Deadline Is March 17

YORK (York Co.) — If a request for refund of dairy assessments collected up until April last year by the USDA isn't made by March 17, then forget getting the money back.

That's the gist of a news release from the York County office of the USDA Farm Service Agency.

Though the news release from York was made this week, other FSA offices have also issued news releases explaining the same deadline.

For several years, up until the 1996 Farm Bill was adopted by Congress and signed by the President, the USDA collected an assessment from each farmer's milk check for sale of every hundred pounds of milk.

The assessment program was initiated in an attempt to curtail growth in milk production, or at least ensure that those entities that increased milk production helped pay to keep the excess product off of the open market in order to prevent sharp declines in the price paid for milk.

The assessment was designed so that all dairy producers paid in, but those who could show that they did not increase production received a refund of the assessment, while those who increased production gave up the right of recompensation.

The funds collected were amounts estimated to be needed by the Commodity Credit Corporation to purchase excess dairy products from the open market in order to sustain raw milk prices to the farmer.

Prior to the assessment program, the USDA used tax funds to purchase excess production, store dairy product and then release it back into the marketplace or use it for various food programs in order to keep prices from going too high when open-market excesses disappeared.

The assessment program was seen as a way to decrease the amount of federal funds needed to maintain low to affordable dairy prices for the consumer (by puting more of the burden on those production entities mostly responsible for excessive production), as well as a way to continue the government's role of preventing the dairy production infrastructure from collapsing during short-term excess production.

The 1996 Farm Bill changed that, because of its overall objective of turning the nation's agricultural production industry over to the effects of the demands and rejections of the open market.

Those whose total 1996 milk marketings affected by the assessment (January, February, March and April) were less than that production made during the same period in 1995, are to receive a refund of that assessment.

Those who stopped farming early during 1996 are still eligible to claim their refund by showing that they did not produce any more milk during that period than during an equivalent number of months and days in 1995.

However, even though owed the funds, the farmer must apply for it and provide the necessary documentation. Paperwork from the purchaser to the producer normally includes an annual summary which serves as documentation.

Those with questions should contact their local FSA office immediately.

For those in York County, the FSA office is located at the county Pleasant Acres Complex in east York. The number is (717) 755-2801.

Dairylea To Sponsor Young Farmer Seminar

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Recognizing that today's young farmers will provide the dairy industry with direction and leadership well into the next century, Dairylea Cooperative Inc. is sponsoring an informational seminar for members ages 20-40.

On February 22 and 23, more than 100 Dairylea Young Farmers are expected to gather at the Triphammer Lodge and Conference Center in Ithaca, N.Y., to hear about issues pertinent to farm operations and the dairy industry. The seminar will include presentations on milk pricing, profit-enhancing livestock activities, financial planning, and money saving farm services. The Young Farmers will also hear from Dairylea Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith, who will address the Cooperative's progress and developments in the dairy industry.

In addition, this year's program includes a tour of Northeast Dairy Herd Improvement Association's (NeDHIA) state-of-the-art laboratory and a visit to the Cornell Training and Research Farm.

"Dairylea is committed to keeping our young members up to date on farming and industry matters," said Mark Kenville, Dairylea director of member relations and communications. "Knowledge is essential in operating a successful dairy business and is a key factor in building leadership. There also is immense benefit in bringing together young farmers who have similar experiences, challenges and goals. Through interaction, many participants return home from our seminar with new approaches and ideas for their farm operations."

Dairylea is a Syracuse-based, agricultural service organization, cooperatively owned by dairy farmers throughout the Northeast. It markets more than 4.5 billion pounds of milk annually and participates, and is invested in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

Silage Conference Plays To Sold-Out Crowd

As an example of some of the material presented, in his discussion of corn hybrids for silage, Roth talked about the new varieties that have shown high yield for silage, but have some limitations when it comes to then attempting to use them for grain.

In effect, he said that while varieties for silage are now becoming available and are worth the producer's interest, the farmer using them, typically a dairy farmer, can run into specific climatic and site conditions that may warrant the use of a grain variety, or a variety more suited for dual uses.

In his conclusions, he makes the point that agronomists and advisors must consider the actual farming operation and what will best serve that specific farmer and his needs.

He said that a number of considerations must be made, among them such things as that a dual use variety may be best; that managing fields for silage can provide advantages; that the economics of both yield and quality need to be considered; that yield and quality goals are different for each producer; that objectivity in data is essential; and that hybrid evaluation trials must be done with care so as to benefit from the results.

Another speaker talking about nutritional aspects of silage hybrids stressed that while grain yield may be the most widely used characteristic used to select a variety for both grain and silage uses, that it is not the best aspect to focus upon when selecting silage varieties.

Others discussed the management of silage to control the growth of molds and fungus that produce mycotoxins and testing for mycotoxins, while others discussed silo considerations, and harvester considerations, such as cutterhead knife tip speed, and what to look for in a new harvester.

Consultants and extension agents who attended the conference should be able to provide more specific information on what was learned during the three-day event during the coming months, and also help with those who may wish to obtain copies of the proceedings for their own reading and reference.

Victory Reigns For 4-H'ers At Beef And Lamb Banquet

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — "Four-H has taught us how to reign in victory and accept defeat," Regina Landis, president of the Woolies Club, said at the Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Banquet on Thursday evening.

She spoke of participating in show competitions with her heart pounding and adrenalin flowing, "not always with victory, but sometimes with anger."

Learning to control these emotions, Regina believes, prepares members for a successful life.

The annual banquet was no exception. Numerous members received trophies and awards, but not everyone who worked hard won the top awards.

About 200 attending the banquet applauded the achievements of both the Red Rose Beef Club and the Woolies Club.

Some of the outstanding achievements included the following. Jessica Schmidt won the traveling trophy and $150 savings bond as the winner of the Shepherd of the Year. The daughter of Pete and Laurie Schmidt of Holtwood, debuted in sheep competition with two Dorsets lambs. Later, she added Montadales, which she had won at the 4-H Fair. Over the years, she has won numerous trophies for her sheep and in leadline competition. She is also treasurer for both the Beef and the Sheep Club.

Gerald Boyd received the annual $250 scholarship given by the Gerald Engle Family. Gerald, the son of Kerry and Deb Boyd of Ephrata, has participated in many 4-H projects and was a Polish 4-H exchange student. He plans to major in elementary education at Millersville University.

Dale Livengood, vice president for the Beef Club, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Livengood of Lancaster received the Jason L. Weaver Memorial Award for showing outstanding leadership qualities for inspiring younger 4-H members.

Again this year, a countian has been awarded the J. Ira Coble award. The award is named after J. Ira Coble, a cattle breeder from Harrisburg who always maintained a strong interest in 4-H. After his death, the family created the award to recognize an outstanding 4-H leader annually. The honor is awarded at the Pennsylvania Farm Show and is selected from leaders throughout the state. Above are the five countians who have received this prestigious honor, since its inception. Front, from left, are Lester Weaver, Harvey High, and Mylin Good. Back row, from left, are Elvin Hess and William Dean Jr.

Joelyn Donough, daughter of Ed and LaRue Donough of Manheim, received the Novice Shepherd Award for her success in showing the first year.

Second year Novice Shepherd Award went to Ashley Funk of Millersville.

Sarah Nolt received the Red Rose 4-H Rookie Award, for her hardworking enthusiastic first year as a 4-H member.

Awards for best record books fotr the sheep club went to Gerald Boyd, Ashley Funk, Sara Strickler, Rachell Newcomer, Bobbi Bentzel, Tiffany Dean, Allison Hughes, and Richard Musser.

Loren Hershey won awards for best junior record book for both the Woolies Club and the Red Rose Beef Club.

Abraham Smith won the Beef Club's Go-Getter Award, for "always sticking with it," as a responsible member.

Numerous other awards were also given, but not all awards went to youth. Contributing to the success of the 4-H program are volunteer leaders who work tirelessly with the members. Bud Dean of Strasburg was recognized for winning the J. Ira Coble Award, which is actually presented on the state level. Dean is the fifth countian to received this pretigious award. J. Ira Coble was a cattle breeder from Harrisburg who believed in the promotion of the 4-H program. Family members established the award after his death.

Since its inception, five of the winners have been countians. All attended the banquet and were honored. In addition to Dean, the winners included Elvin Hess of Strasburg for 36 years of service; Harvey High of Leola for 29 years of service; Lester Weaver of New Holland for 34 years of service, and Mylin Good of Manheim for 41 years of service.

Lancaster Farming and The Intelligencer Journal received 4-H Appreciation plaques for outstanding reporting of 4-H livestock events.

Travis Donough, president of the Red Rose Beef Club closed the meeting by stressing that all the success that members received would not have been possible without the hard work of livestock agent Chet Hughes, 4-H leaders, buyers, and parents.

Teleconference Focuses On Cooperative Advisers

ITHACA, N.Y. — Cooperative Extension educators and other USDA staff from across the Northeast are set to downlink a live satellite teleconference broadcast from Cornell University this spring that focuses on the role advisers play in cooperative development.

The teleconference, sponsored by the Northeast Center for Sustainable Agriculture Education and Research, the Cornell Cooperative Enterprise Program and the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, is scheduled for Wednesday, April 2. Satellite downlink sites are located throughout the 11-state Northeast region.

The broadcast program, "Cooperating for Sustainability," is a regional project developed to provide training for cooperative organization advisers and leaders. It takes a close look at three new cooperatives in the Northeast and investigates key components involved with their successes and failures.

Brian Henehan, senior extension associate with the Cornell Cooperative Enterprise Program, said, "We really want this program to target the current needs of USDA staff in advising new cooperative leaders."

He said that farmers are actively re-inventing the concept of cooperation to discover new, efficient ways to increase farm profitability.

"Producer members of these new and emerging cooperatives are demanding the best advice available to build their organizations into viable enterprises in an increasingly complex marketplace," Henehan said.

Historically, USDA agencies have played key roles in cooperative development, and that role today has become even more important.

For more information about the teleconference, contact the Cornell Cooperative Enterprise Program at (607) 255-8800. There is a site on the world wide web set up to offer information and updates on the conference. The address is hhtp://www.cals.cornell.edu/dept/arme/cooperatives/flyer.

Reducing Feed Costs

YORK (York Co.) — It's been a year of challenges for the beef cow/calf producer.

Not only have producers had to contend with grain shortages that sent feed prices sky high, but they've faced the seven-year low in cattle prices at the same time. While grain prices were reduced at harvest, many price analysts expect higher grain prices later this year.

To help weather the storm, producers should be taking a close look at their feeding programs to reduce costs without affecting productivity whenever possible.

Dr. Harold Harpster, Penn State animal scientist, will address this topic at a beef meeting planned for Tuesday, Feb. 18 at Hoss's Steak and Sea House in West York. The meeting will begin with supper from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Harpster has done extensive research on the use of low-quality roughages for beef cows. His research on the use of byproduct feeds for beef cattle paved the way for the conversion of "waste products" into useful feedstuffs.

By-product feeds and forages are two alternatives that need careful consideration. The use of low quality roughages for beef cows is essential for survival.

Producers feeding cows need to evaluate the body condition of cows carefully and plan winter feeding programs accordingly. Cattle feeders need to consider by-product feeds that can be partially substituted for more expensive grain products in the ration.

To register for the workshops, call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408. Reservations are required to be sure seating is available.

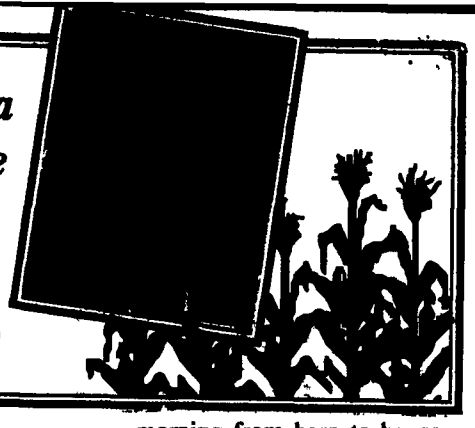
On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp



Drab. Gray. Brown. Ho hum.

Unless covered with a white blanket of snow — of which we've seen relatively little this winter — that's a pretty fair description of our countryside along about mid-February. With the mild weather, continuing frequent moisure and oozy texture of the ground from daily freeze-thaw cycles, the farmstead sometimes seemed totally robed in a cloak of Boring Brown.

(The Crayola crayon folks just came out with some new colors for which they were doing a name search. Boring Brown doesn't sound like it would make it past the first cut.)

And, when we color over the Boring Brown with shadings of Grungy Gray skies, it forms a landscape that's downright monotonous.

That's what I grumbled one rather dreary morning last week. Sunshine that had tried to push through the steely layer of clouds overhead had failed. Moisture was forecast for some hours later. And the mud was thawing just enough that my feet slid sideways on the slope of the yard, enroute mid-morning from barn to house.

But then, while watching a downy woodpecker nibbling at the suet hung on the side of one of the maples, I took a more thorough — and optimistic — look around the landscape outside the kitchen window.

Hey, it wan't Boring Brown at all. Well, maybe some was, like the muddy field road which the tractor tires churn daily during trips with the feed wagon. And the stack of boxstall manure being stockpiled for spring hauling when the fields firm up. Even that has a jaunty cap of yellowish straw perched rakishly atop its dark, organic-rich contents.

Indeed, most of what's beyond the window isn't brown at all.

The backyard lawn, for instance, resembles a subtle-shaded tweed carpet of very pale beige, woven with threads of grass green running through its shag texture. And, at certain sheltered, southern-exposed spots, like beneath the overhanging branches of the Norway spruce, the lawn grass is nearly as bright a shade of green as any patch we'll mow in May.

Other shades of green dot the surroundings, most a darker hue marking winter dormancy, but green nevertheless. Spikes of a yucca plank pokes out of the bare ground at spots in the perennial beds, looking like discplaced refugees from the dessert. A large yew bush, rescued a few years ago from a homeowner making landscaping changes, stands silent watch beside the spring house. Weeks ago, it contributed long-lasting greenery to our indoor holiday bouquets — and didn't drop needles within a few days as do some evergreens.

Green stripes of life march out through the contoured fields, contrasting with the dull beige of the dead tops of dormant alfalfa. The stripes run in neat rows through the fields of corn stubble, marking where a fall crop of rye was sown for winter cover and spring grass silage making. Though the weather turned so cold and nasty early last fall that the rye was slow to germinate and grow, this mild winter and recent warm, sunny days have coaxed it along to life.

Greenish-black — not brown — branches of the pussywillows are pushing soft gray catkins out at the ends of each twig. Every the weeping willows are just beginning to show hints of the yellowing which marks their seasonal progression toward pushing up sap.

And the ponds in the meadow reflect a dozen different colors in the day, garbed in the yellows and oranges of sunrise, then donning the clear blue of mid-morning. By evening, they may wear shades of sunset lavendar and pink. On bright, brisk days, the winds chop the surfaces into a million dancing diamonds. Or, the waters may reflect a flat, ominous blue-black as moisture-laden clouds scuttle in overhead.

Somber, perhaps, are the colors of the February outdoors. Subtle, definitely.

But Boring Brown. Not a chance.

Protect Kids From Pesticide Poisoning

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — An estimated 80,000 children were involved in common household pesticide-related poisonings or exposures in the United States in 1993, according to the American Association of Poison Control Centers.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency reports that almost half of all households with children under five had at least one pesticide stored in an unlocked cabinet less than four feet off the ground. About 75 percent of households without children under five also stored pesticides in this manner. That is significant since 13 percent of all pesticide poisoning incidents occur in homes other than the child's.

Bathrooms and kitchens were cited as the areas most likely to have improperly stored pesticides. Examples include roach sprays, rat poison, insect and wasp sprays, repellents and baits, and flea and tick shampoo and dips for pets. Other household pesticides include swimming pool chemicals and weed killers.

Since 1981, the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act has required most residential-use pesticides with a signal word or "danger" or "warning" to be in child-resistant packaging. Such packaging is designed to prevent — or at least delay — most children under five from gaining access to the pesticide.

Adults must take precautions to protect children from pesticide poisonings and exposures. Here are some ways:

- Always store pesticides away from children's reach in a locked cabinet or garden shed. Install child-proof safety latches on cabinets.
- Read the label first, and follow all directions to the letter, including all precautions and restrictions.
- Before applying pesticides indoors or outdoors, remove children and their toys as well as pets from the area. Keep them away until the pesticide has dried or as long as is recommended by the label.
- If your use of a pesticide is interrupted, be sure to leave the container out of the reach of children while you are gone.
- Never place rodent or insect baits where small children can get to them.
- Use child-resistant packaging properly by closing the container tightly after use.
- Alert others to the potential hazard of pesticides, especially caregivers and grandparents.
- Teach children that "pesticides are poisons," something they should not touch.
- Avoid unnecessary use of pesticides. Use them when needed in conjunction with other pest management strategies.
- If is is necessary to have your home treated, make sure that it is done by a licensed pest control company.

At 100 years old, Abram Flory enjoys talking about Ayrshires and the dairy farm on which he established a milk bottling business. He still has several milk bottles from his Mountain View Dairy. Several magazine and newspaper clippings reveal Flory's involvement in showing Ayrshires at the Pennsylvania Farm Show and at the Manheim Farm Show that he helped establish.

Flory is shown with four of his six children. All of his children are still living. In addition, he has 23 grandchildren, 43 great grandchildren, and eight great-great grandchildren.

Farming Memories Highlight 100-Year-Old's Birthday

LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Abram Flory's eyes light up and excitement tinges his voice as he recalls showing Ayrshires and riding his favorite Chestnut stallion.

"I didn't make much money showing, but I sure had a lot of fun," Flory said on his 100th birthday, which was Feb. 7.

With the help of hearing aids, Flory can easily carry on a conversation with visitors. As he riffled through old snapshots and magazine and newspaper clippings, Flory talked about life during a 100-year-span.

"I never thought I'd live to be 100 years old, but I guess hard work and liking it helped me live this long," he said.

Flory has spent his last five years in the Mt. Hope Dunkard Brethren Church Home in Manheim, only a few miles from his former farm.

"I bought my farm for $23 per acre during the Depression," Flory said of the 141 acres located on Mountain Road in Penryn.

With his first wife Florence, who died 19 years ago, he started farming with 15 head of Ayrshires that he had shipped from Scotland.

The couple had six children who are still living: Mary, wife of Wilbert Stauffer of Lititz; Kathryn Auker, widow from Ephrata; Betty, wife of Glen Miller of Lancaster; Florence of Lancaster; Lloyd and wife Maxine live in Lexington; and Abe Jr. and wife Grace live in Lititz.

When the children were small, Flory purchased a bordering farm and increased the herd to 80 head. The family started Mountain Valley Dairy on their farm when Kathryn was old enough to deliver milk in the area.

"In the beginning we bottled raw milk, but then we had to pasteurize it," Flory said of the milk inspection laws enacted during that era.

He still has several of the glass jars used to bottle the milk. "We started out with round jars, but the ladies soon complained the round bottles took up too much space in the refrigerator so we switched to this one," Flory said as he held up a rectangular-shaped jar. The dairy also used baby-face bottles and pint-sized ones.

While the farm-operated dairy was successful, that success came to a halt seven years after its beginnings when the Pennsylvania Turnpike cut 48 acres from his farm.

"They paid damages but not near what I lost," Flory said of his farm that now required a four-mile round-about drive to reach the land on the other side of the turnpike.

"It was an unpleasant time. I needed to give up the bottling because I didn't have enough of land left for my cows," Flory said.

Other than the unpleasantness of the turnpike taking his land, Flory considers he has had a good life.

His fond memories seem to center on showing cattle. He got his start in showing after he attended the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

"I thought I had nicer cows than those that won, so the next year I brought mine (to the Farm Show). Then I was amazed that they didn't win any ribbons," Flory said with candid honesty. "I learned that I didn't have the right kind of cattle to show, so I went and bought the right kind. After that we (he and three of his children who showed) won many ribbons," he said.

He remembers that he showed the Farm Show Grand Champion Cow Dixie Kate one year but doesn't remember the exact year. However, he does have a picture of the champion cow beneath the Farm Show banner.

Flory appeared on the cover of "Pennsylvania Farmer" and was pictured in this paper and others during the 1950s and '60s. Flory was instrumental in the founding of the Manheim Farm Show and was a 4-H dairy club leader for 18 years.

"I enjoyed helping youngsters to learn to show and clip cattle," he said of his 4-H involvement.

Although he didn't show horses, he enjoyed raising a few. His pride and joy was a Chestnut stallion used as a stud. He still has the

When Flory and his wife started farming, they purchased 15 Ayrshires from Scotland. Later they increased the herd to 80 head at their Manheim farm. Flory purchased his 140-acre farm for $23 per acre during the Depression years. Later he purchased an adjoining farm, but the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission took a large portion of it and sliced the remaining acreage in half when the turnpike was built in the 1930s.

Born Feb. 7, 1897, Abram Flory and his six children gather to celebrate his 100th birthday recently. Interspersed among birthday greetings, Flory and his offspring recall many cherished memories of farming their Manheim dairy farm.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Few vegetables survive in the winter landscape like flowering leeks and onions. Harvest leeks from autumn to spring. Overwintering bunched onions may require protection with a straw mulch in no snow protection occurs. Water may be needed in dry weather.

If spring comes early, the small bulbed spring onions may get planted in March. Spring onions are normally transplanted, or 'set' in mid April in central Pennsylvania — about 10 days later in colder regions. Plant spring onions about 3 to 5 weeks earlier. Leeks should be sowed in early April for late June to early July field transplanting.

Onions and leeks like a soil pH of 6.2 to 6.8. Fertilizer and lime should be applied based on soil test results — kits can be purchased from your local Extension office.

In the absence of a test, apply to each 100 square feet 4.5 pounds of 5-10-10 fertilizer where potash is thought to be low. If wood ashes, manures, or high rates of complete fertilizers have been applied previously, then apply 4.5 pounds of 5-10-5 per 100 square feet. Broadcast all fertilizers and work into the soil before planting.

Plant onions and leek send ½ inch deep. Onion sets should be planted about 1 to 1½ inch deep while leek transplants should be set in a trench about 6 inches deep to be filled gradually.

Space onions — transplants and direct-seeded — 1½ to 2 feet apart between rows and 3 to 4 inches apart within rows. Pull every other plant for early harvesting. Leeks are planted 1½ to 2 feet apart between rows and 5 to 6 inches apart within rows.

Medium-sized onion sets, ½ to ¾ inch in diameter, are best for producing mature onions. If large sets (over ¾ inche) are planted, many send up seedstalks — pinch these off as soon as they develop. If not removed, thick, double-neck onions will likely be produced; if they do, use as immature green onions because they will not keep well.

When about half or more of the onion tops have fallen and have started to turn brown, bend all of the tops over. When they're completely brown, pull bulbs and spread them to dry. Either braid the tops or trim about 1 inch from the bulb and store in a slatted container, mesh bag, or know into a panthose chain.

As leeks begin to reach harvestable size, hill 3 to 4 inches of soil around the stems for maximum blanching. Hardy strains such as Broad London will overwinter well with some marsh hay or straw mulch covering.

Leeks should be harvested when they reach an edible size. Those transplanted in early July are ready for harvest by October. If overwintered, havest in early spring before seedstalk formation or bolting occurs.

Any questions regarding the above article can be addressed to Tom Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408.

advertisement with stud services priced at $25.

"The horse had a racing record, and I had someone show it one year, but they were scared of it," he said.

Flory enjoyed riding the stallion on his farm and also hooked it up to a carriage.

While the world has changed dramatically during his 100 years of living, Flory said that he is most astounded at the cost of seed corn and fertilizer.

Until he was 72 years old, Flory said that he got up at 4 a.m. every morning to milk cows.

"When I sold the cows, I got homesick for them. I always liked to work," he said.

Although he no longer has work to do, he often awakens at 4 a.m. and thinks about his former life on the farm.

After his first wife died in 1979, Flory married Mary Shank, who died five years later. He then married Sadie Brenneman, who after 10 years of marriage died about one year ago.

In addition to his six children, Flory has 23 grandchildren, 43 great-grandchildren, and eight great-great grandchildren.

"You can do a lot, if you live to be 100," Flory said.

MUFFINS WITH CINNAMON-BUTTER TOPPING

2 cups all-purpose flour
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar, divided
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup (1 stick) butter, cut into slices
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Preheat oven to 400 F. In medium bowl, combine flour, ½ cup sugar, baking powder and salt. Add butter; cut in with pastry blender or two knives until mixture is crumbly and resembles small peas. Beat together milk and egg. Add to flour mixture; stir just until combined. Do not overmix; batter will be lumpy. Divide batter among 12 paper-lined muffin cups. Bake 15-18 min. or until lightly browned. Remove from oven; cool 5 min. Remove from tins and cool on wire rack. Combine remaining 2 tablespoons sugar and the cinnamon. Brush tops of muffins with melted butter; sprinkle with sugar mixture. Serve warm.

VARIATIONS: For Blueberry Muffins, fold 1 cup fresh blueberries into batter; do not overmix. Proceed as recipe directs. For Carrot-Raisin Muffins, decrease milk to ½ cup. Stir 1 can (8 ounces) crushe pineapple (undrained), ½ cup grated carrot (about 2 medium), ¼ cup raisins, and ¼ cup chopped pecans into batter. Divide mixture among muffin cups. Mixture will almost fill cup. Bake 20-25 min. or until golden brown. Proceed as recipe directs. Yield: 1 dozen.

CHI CHI TRIPLE CORN MUFFINS

8 dried cornhusks (6-8 inches long)
1 cup yellow or blue cornmeal
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
½ cup Salsa verde*
¼ cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons honey
½ cup fresh or frozen whole kernel corn

*Salsa Verde mentioned is a product put out commercially by ChiChi. This is a different type of spicy and sweet salsa, made with Mexico's tomatillos; fresh cilantro, and fresh onions.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Grease 2½-inch muffin cups, separate cornhusks.

In large bowl, pour boiling water over cornhusks to cover. Soak about 10 minutes or until soft and pliable. Drain, pat dry. Tear cornhusks lengthwise into two-inch strips. Set aside.

In large bowl, combine cornmeal, flour, baking powder, and salt. In medium mixing bowl, beat milk, salsa verde, oil, honey, and egg until well blended. Stir liquid ingredients into flour mixture, mix just enough to moisten dry ingredients. Stir in corn.

Place two to three cornhusk strips in each muffin cup; crossing centers in bottom of cups so husk ends fan out around sides. As each cup is lined, fill with batter.

Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until tops are golden brown. Remove muffin from cornhusks before eating.

ANSWER — Margie Hartman of Pittsburgh wanted a recipe for New Year's Pretzel. Thanks to Pat Stockett, Colts Heel, NJ, for sending one.

Neujarspretzel
New Year's Pretzels

2 cups milk
½ cup butter
2 packages yeast, active, dry
2 teaspoons salt
½ cup sugar
7 cups flour, unbleached
2 large eggs
1 cup confectioners' sugar
Water as needed
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ cup almonds, chopped

Heat milk and butter until very warm (120-130 degrees F.). Mix yeast, salt, sugar, and 1 cup flour. Slowly beat into warm milk. Beat for 2 minutes. Add eggs and 1 cup flour. Beat for an additional 2 minutes. Add enough flour to form a soft dough. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 5 minutes. Place dough in a greased bowl. Let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down and let rise again until doubled (1 hour more). Divide dough in half.

Shape pretzel as follows: Roll dough into a rope about 30 inches long and 1½ -inches in diameter. Cross the ends leaving a large loop in the center. Flip loop back onto crossed ends to form a pretzel. Repeat with remaining dough. Place pretzels on greased baking sheets. Let rise 15 minutes more. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until golden brown. Cool on wire racks. Mix confectioners' sugar, vanilla, and enough water to form a thin icing. Spread icing on pretzels and sprinkle with chopped almonds. Makes 2 large pretzels.

ANSWER — Shirley Lilley, Baltimore, Md., wanted a recipe for gingerbread square cupcakes and frosting similar to that marketed by Valley Pride Bakery. Thanks to Pat Stockett, Colts Heel, NJ, for sending the following.

Frosted Gingerbread

2 cups all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mixed spice
1½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 teapsoon baking soda
¼ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup molasses
⅓ cup hard butter
½ cup dark brown sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
3-ounces cream cheese, softened
1 cup powdered sugar
Crystallized ginger slices

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease a 11x7-inch baking pan. Line bottom and sides with greased waxed paper, allowing paper to stand 1-inch above sides of pan. Sift flour, salt, mixed spice, ginger, and baking soda into a bowl. In a saucepan, combine corn syrup, molasses, margarine, and brown sugar, and heat gently until melted. Stir into flour mixture and add eggs and milk. Stir until evenly mixed.

Pour into prepared pan and bake in preheated oven 45-50 minutes or until well risen and baked through. Cool in pan, turn out and remove waxed paper. To make icing, put cream cheese into a bowl and soften well. Gradually sift powdered sugar into cream cheese and mix well, using a fork, to make a soft creamy mixture. Spread icing over cold cake. Using blade of a knife, form a rippled effect on icing. Decorate with crystallized ginger. Cut into 12 pieces.

Helping Children Deal With Death

I will never forget the morning that our dog, Lance, died. He had been a family member for 16 years. My children at that time were 13, 10, and 8. One by one each of us shared a quiet moment alone with our cherished family member before going to school and work. Even though we grieved openly as a family, each one of us dealt with our own personal grief in our own way during that day and the days that followed.

Sometimes as parents, we get side-lined with our own grief and don't realize that our children are also experiencing the same painful loss of much-loved relatives, friends, and pets. It is our responsibility to help our children deal with death.

How can you help your grieving children? First of all you must be aware of the many feelings that are expressed during grief: guilt, anger, sadness, disbelief, and numbness.

Children will have many questions for which parents probably won't have all the answers. Don't let his part scare you away from talking to your children. Take time to sit down with your children and answer them as honestly as you can even if it means saying, "I don't know."

Sharing your own feelings will be helpful for them to understand that you are sad and it is a normal emotion to feel. Hiding your feelings about death may be translated by children that feelings, especially about death should be kept to oneself.

Poor communication about what actually happened should be explained at the level children can understand. Young children operate in a concrete world, understanding what they are able to see and touch. Never use the expressions, "he passed away," "she went to sleep," or "he went to a better place."

Children will often get mixed messages. For example, they may be afraid to go to sleep at night for fear of not coming back.

It is not only important to listen to your children, but also to watch them. Because grief is a process that doesn't end a few days after a funeral, you may notice that your children may not be able to express their grief. They may express their feelings by becoming depressed. Signs of depressions to watch for are withdrawal, poor school performance, and changes in eating and sleeping habits.

How long does it take to get over grief? This is impossible to predict. Grief is a painful process, and the important part is that you make yourself available to your children. This helps the process move forward even if the same feelings keep coming up over and over again. This may signal a movement toward recovery. It is also common for children to grieve intermittently often showing no signs of grief and then suddenly longing for the lost relationship. Again, be ready to listen and to discuss their feelings.

For additional information on understanding grief and children, contact your local Penn State Cooperative Extension Office and request the book, Are You Sad Too?, which is available on loan from the Better Kid Care library.

It is impossible to protect children from dealing with death — it's a natural part of growing up. It is possible to help your children get through the grieving process successfully by having grown positively from the experience. In fact, you will grow with them.

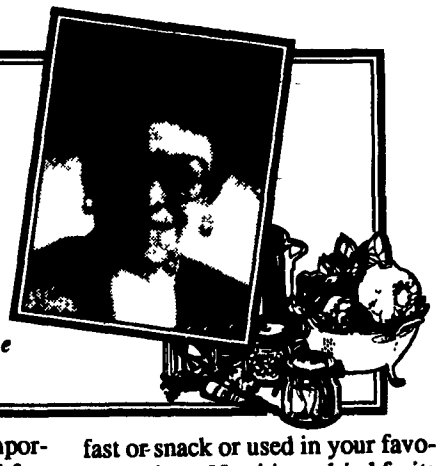
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Most people know how important it is to eat a good breakfast every day. But did you know that in addition to helping you feel better and concentrate harder, a good breakfast can help you control your weight? It's true! Eating breakfast will satisfy hunger and help prevent overeating later on. And the calories you consume in the morning are burned off during the course of the day!

Prunes are a delicious dried fruit that can be served for breakfast or snack or used in your favorite recipes. Nutritious dried fruits such as prunes, apricots, figs, dates, etc. are readily available year-round.

When winter winds blow and fresh fruits are scarce, take the time to enjoy a warming bowl of oatmeal with moist, sweet, chopped prunes scattered on top. Or try prunes plumped in fruit juice to perk up the appetite before the day begins. Prunes are a satisfying breakfast fruit — great for starting you off well-nourished on the most bitterly wet or cold mornings.

Prunes are low in calories, fat and sodium. They are high in fiber, and are a good source of potassium and Vitamin A. Try the following good prune breakfast ideas.

•Add chopped pitted prunes to quick breaks, muffins or pancake batter.

•For a quick morning eye opener, combine plumped pitted prunes in containers of electric blender with an egg substitute (equivalent to one egg), milk, cinnamon, honey and few ice cubes. Blend until smooth.

•Add quartered prunes to homemade granola for moistness and tangy flavor.

SUGAR AND SPICE PRUNE MUFFINS

Here is a tasty recipe using prunes that is ideal to serve at any breakfast or brunch.

1¼ cups plus 1 tablespoon flour
3 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup coarsley chopped pitted prunes*
½ cup coarsley chopped tart apple
1 tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon cinnamon, for topping

In large bowl combine 1¾ cups flour, 3 tablespoons sugar, baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and salt.

In small bowl mix milk, eggs and butter; stir into flour mixture to blend.

Toss prunes and apple with the remaining tablespoon flour; fold into batter. Spoon into 12 greased 2¼ inch muffin cups.

Mix 1 tablespoon sugar with ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Sprinkle over muffin top.

Bake in preheated 425-degree over 20 to 25 minutes until springy to the touch. Serve warm. Makes 12 muffins.

*Pitted prunes can be coarsley chopped with a food processor using a quick on-off motion. Before chopping prunes for baked goods, add a little of the flour called for in the recipe to prevent sticking. If using a knife or kitchen shears, oil the blade before chopping.

Handling tip: When prunes are packaged, they're soft and moist. To keep prunes moist once a package has been opened, store them in an airtight container in the refrigerator. If prunes become dry or sugary, or if a recipe calls for plumped prunes, simply cover them with boiling water or very hot tap water. Soak prunes about 5 minutes, drain, and pat dry.

Angelique, Alisha, Galen (with Tanner) and Galen II in the award room of the McDonald farm.

Five Family Members Earn American Farmer Degrees

LINDA WILLIAMS

IMLER (Bedford Co.) — Five in one family earned the prestigious American Farmer degree and the next generation is slated to follow in their predecessor's footsteps.

The Galen McDonald family is, without a doubt, an all American farming family. Galen Sr. received the award in 1972 for his work on the farm where he grew up and still resides.

Over the years the McDonald's four children, Angie, Missy, Alicia, and Galen II have participated with their registered Guernseys in the Bedford Fair, Cambria County Fair, Morrison's Cove Dairy Show, Cookport Fair, the All American Dairy Show and have had a junior champion at Louisville, Kentucky.

The American Farmer degree is earned by keeping records from ninth grade until three years following graduation. Records must be kept on all farm projects as well as a show of leadership in the farming community.

You must also have been awarded the state FFA degree and have earned the Greenhand, Chapter, and Dekalb awards.

All four of the McDonald children participated in FFA at Chestnut Ridge High School. Angelique (McDonald) Walason received her American Farmer degree in 1992; Malissa (McDonald) Garth, in 1994; Alicia in 1995, and Galen in 1996.

Still very involved in farming, Angelique, a former Pennsylvania state Guernsey queen, is married to Jeff Walason, and resides on the family farm. She has one child, Tanner. "He's next in line for the award," Angie says with a bright smile.

Angie is the DHIA technician for Bedford and Blair Counties and is the tester for 42 herds.

Malissa, married, another McDonald state Guernsey queen, lives on a farm in Dauphin County and has two daughters. A sign outside of the country decorated home of the McDonalds indicates that "Grandchildren are spoiled here" and the two little girls plus Tanner know exactly what this means.

Alicia is the herdsperson for the McDonald farm. Getting up each morning at 5 a.m., she milks the 72 head of registered Guernseys and Holsteins with only some help from a cousin during the summer months. She also takes care of breeding and stock development.

Galen II is married to Marjorie Leap and they are expecting yet another "American farmer," in April. Galen helps his father farm more than 300 acres during the summer months. He is employed by Rockland Inc.

Alisha, Missy, and Galen serve on the Morrison's Cove Dairy Show board.

Both Alisha and Angie are 4-H leaders in the Southern Cove Dairy Show. Alisha is on the sale crew of the state Guernsey Convention which is held in Bedford in April.

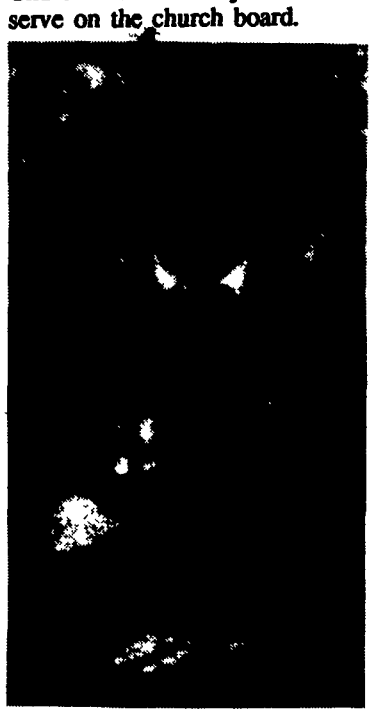
Alisha and Galen Sr. serve on the Bedford County Fair Dairy Committee.

Angie and Alisha has been named outstanding Guernsey youth.

The McDonalds have also won the All-American Dairy Show outstanding display herdsman award.

Meanwhile, Sonja McDonald, is kept busy being a mother, grandmother, and taking care of her creatively decorated farm home.

The McDonalds have all been active in the Weyant Methodist Church and both Sonja and Galen serve on the church board.



Malissa now lives in Dauphin County but is still a farmer. She is the mother of two daughters.

Farm Woman Testifies At Discrimination Hearing

GROVE CITY (Mercer Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman called for hearings across the country to allow farmers and ranchers the opportunity to relay to the government any cases of discrimination and lack of service due to either being a minority or a farm woman. American Agri-Women Vice President for Vital Issues, Carol Ann Gregg of Grove City, a farm woman and agriculture advocate, testified on the issue and spoke for the organization which represents more than 50,000 farm, ranch and agribusiness women.

Gregg testified, "As I talked with a number of members across the nation, I found no one who had personally experienced discrimination or harassment in working with USDA staff or officials. Many of these women are farm operators, farm wives and family-farm corporation officers who have regular dealings with the local Farm Service Agency (FSA) or Natural Resources and Conservation Services (NRCS) personnel with no apparent problems." Gregg went on to praise Secretary Glickman for taking the initiative to correct problems that have been brought to his attention.

Gregg further stated, "More and more women actively participate in their farm operations rather than only provide support for a husband's endeavors. Farm realtors and bankers have begun to look at farm women as contributors to the management of farm operations whether they are sole proprietors, partners or spouses."

Hypothermia: What You Should Know

Wearing a hat can prevent the loss of up to 20 percent of total body heat.

(NAPS)—Two of the most dangerous conditions that can result from cold weather are hypothermia and frostbite. Here's what you should know to protect yourself this winter.

Hypothermia occurs when your internal body temperature drops lower than normal as a result of being in a cold environment—indoors or out. Babies, people in poor health and the elderly can easily become hypothermic.

Symptoms can range from constant shivering, urge to urinate, confusion and sleepiness to muscle stiffness, slurred speech and trouble seeing.

You can help a victim of hypothermia by taking the person to a dry, warm place and warming the person with blankets or your own body heat.

Frostbite occurs when the skin freezes as a result of low temperatures, wet clothes, or even forceful winds. Fingers, toes, earlobes, cheeks and nose have the greatest exposure to cold and are most likely to be affected.

Frostbite ranges from white or yellowish skin accompanied by an itching or burning sensation, to numbness and reddened or swollen skin. Severe frostbite symptoms include blistering and hardened skin.

To help a frostbite victim, get the person to a warm, dry place and remove constrictive clothing. Raise affected areas and apply warm moist compresses to these areas. Do not rub frostbitten areas or apply direct heat.

With hypothermia and frostbite, medical attention should be sought as soon as possible.

Dr. Elaine Josephson of the American College of Emergency Physicians wants you to stay warm in the colder months with these tips.

- Limit your exposure to cold and go indoors if there's any doubt you're too cold.
- Eat plenty of food and stay as active as possible.
- Be careful of things that restrict your circulation—smoking, tight clothing and fatigue. Ask your doctor if medication you're taking can affect your circulation, and limit your hot toddies! Alcohol also affects your circulation.
- Dress in multiple layers of clothing to trap warm air between layers
- Wear a hat outside. It can prevent up to 20 percent of total body heat loss

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

As I stood in front of my sink recently, I began to think about how much time I've spent in front of a sink. It almost covers a lifetime.

My mother had a dry sink in a corner behind a door in her kitchen. Being the oldest of seven girls, there were many dishes washed in that hot corner. The hot water was in a reservoir beside our coal stove. We never lined the sink with zinc and so a corner rotted over the almost 20 years that we used it.

Then when I got married, I bought a white cast-iron sink at a public sale. It was not hooked up to water for a long time and so a five-gallon bucket under it had to be emptied quite often. This sink faced a window as I wanted to have a view. My view was of a big pile of wooden shingles that my father removed from an 1800s barn. And, under this pile lived a groundhog and some little ones. Everyday at 3:00 they came out to sun themselves. Eventually the sink had plumbing and I continued to stand there and peel potatoes for a family of eight.

Then after another 20 years we decided to have a new kitchen. Our summer house was torn down and became my big kitchen with a walk-in fireplace at one end. The exposed beams were from a very old tobacco shed built with pegs. This time I had a double sink and a garbage disposal and I faced my garden. Or course, this constantly reminded me of the work to be done outside.

My present sink faces a public road and an old apple tree with a bird feeder. A main highway is in the distance and we can hear the cars. Here I stand and prepare the vegetables and fruits that I can and freeze. And, here I stand and peel potatoes for two.

That first dry sink is in our family room and has been refinished as the yellow-grained finish had worn off from years of use. Now it holds small antique kitchen tools and is still useful.

Thorncroft Helps Those With Disabilities

MALVERN (Chester Co.) — Thorncroft Equestrian Center, one of the country's oldest and largest therapeutic riding centers, has selected Christopher Reeves, his wife Dana, and son Will as the group winners of the 1997 Thorncroft Human Spirit Award.

As group winners, Reeve and his family will receive specially commissioned medallions as the guests of honor at Thorncroft's Annual Victory Gallop, April 5, at The Park Hyatt Philadelphia at the Bellevue. The medals will be presented personally by members of Thorncroft's Family of the Year.

This year, Thorncroft has recognized the family of Bruce and Karen Smith as the 1997 "Family of the Year." With three children of their own, the Smiths have served as foster parents for up to 10 children, many who ride at Thorncroft. The Smiths were chosen for their dedication to children with special needs — sharing their own strength and family values with those around them. The Smith's family includes Colin Smith, 21, Adam Smith, 18, and Corinne Smith, 16. The Smiths are currently caring for three foster children, Taiana, 7, Brittany, 5, and a newborn baby girl who came to them at Christmas.

Set in the pasture land of Chester County, Thorncroft brings adults and children with a variety of abilities together to ride, talk, and share in an accepting environment where they can learn and grow together. Of the program's 350 riders, approximately half come to Thorncroft with special needs. More than 150 are disabled from disease, a traumatic accident, Down's Syndrome or mental disability. Many are confined to wheelchairs, walkers, or emotional types of isolation. Riding unlocks those confines.

More than 200 men, women, and teenagers volunteer to assist Thorncoft's staff of skilled equestrians. Thorncroft offers riding lessons as a unique form of therapy. Atop the horses, students are distracted from what would be a typical therapy session, as they ride in the woods or across an open field on four powerful legs.

Riders come to Thorncroft from family homes, regional schools, support programs, and health care facilities. Roughly 20 percent of the disabled riders are on full or partial scholarship. The difference is made up through donations. There is a two-year waiting list for Thorncroft's therapeutic program. Though the full price of a lession is $30 or $120 per month, no one is ever turned away for lack of funds.

Goats Inspire Friendly Farm Fudge Factory

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

POTTERS MILLS (Centre Co.) — While Amanda Schriefer recalled how she and her husband Trent first became goat owners, she exclaimed, "I never imagined things would get this out of control!"

"Out of control" refers to the 6,000 pounds of homemade goat fudge that Amanda made this past year. And to opening a State College candy store that features the fudge.

Amanda admits that her relationship with the 100-head goat dairy herd is a love-hate relationship. But one thing she maintains is that her goat fudge is the creamiest and most delicious around. Unlike fudge made from cow's milk, goat milk fudge does not become "sugary" with age.

In the four years since the Schriefers started their goat dairy, their fudge, which comes in multiple flavors, is in demand all over the U.S.

When the goat herd first became a part of Happy Valley Friendly Farm, their purpose was not to produce milk to make fudge but to educate visitors on what the Schriefers call "a gate-to-plate operation," which means showing people the process of raising goats to the end product of food, or in this case milk on the table.

To understand this concept, it's important to know a bit of history about Happy Valley Friendly Farm, located 12 miles east of State College on Rt. 322, Potters Mill.

Begun in 1989, the 20-acre site was designed as an agriculture learning center to educate and provide guests with friendly animals to pet, feed, and love. Last year, more than 22,000 people visited the farm and the 250 animals that live there.

In 1993, the Schriefers added a goat dairy.

From the beginning those ornery goats seemed destined to cause trouble. Because of a misunderstanding between the Schriefers and the seller of the goats, the herd was delivered three weeks earlier than expected. The milkhouse had not yet been erected and there was no place to milk the freshened goats.

"It was bizarre," Amanda said. "We were hosting a neighborhood picnic, so we all sat with buckets and milked the goats."

Six loyal neighbors returned several times within the next days to help with the milking.

Of course, the milk could not be marketed without milk inspection, so the milk was given to baby piglets, which fattened up fast.

Eventually the milking equipment was hooked up to an outside fence, and the goats were milked with the milk poured into a holding bucket.

"There were goats everywhere. It was a real zoo," Amanda said.

Three weeks later the bulk tank was finally in place and the Schriefers expected things would go smoothly. But the goats needed to be taught to go in and out of the milkhouse. Because most of the purchased goats were show goats, they had only been milked by hand and were not used to having milkers attached.

"Tempers flared," Amanda recalled of the chore that should have taken only one hour but turned into more than three hours.

More disasterous was the pink eye that went through not only the goat herd but every animal on the farm because there had been no facilities to quarantine the goats.

"Other than the bout with pink eye, the goats have been healthy. In general, goats are healthier than most animals and are not subject to diseases like cows. They are a cleaner animal and demand that their surroundings be kept clean. Goats do not even like to get their feet wet and will not step in mud or stand in the rain," Amanda said.

Unlike the old wive's tale that claims goats eat tin cans, Amanda insists goats do not eat tin cans.

"Goats have a tremendous amount of curiosity that often gets them in trouble. Like a small child, they will often taste a thing and just as often spit it out. Their food must be fresh and clean or they will not eat it."

The daily challenges of raising 250 animals while hosting thousands of visitors contrasts sharply with Amanda's former sedate job as a bridal shop owner in New Jersey.

"But I was ready for a change. The farm is a great place to raise our children," Amanda said of Ashlyn, 9; Luke, 7; and Kendra, 5.

The children enjoy licking the fudge batter from the bowl. Although their mother tries to limit their candy intake, she said they prone to find devious ways to eat a little more fudge by making such comments as "Mom, I don't think I tasted that flavor before."

Fudge is so commonplace to Amanda that she often forgets to serve it to houseguests, much to their voiced disappointment.

Despite the emphasis on nutrition and low-fat diets, consumers always find a place for candy, Amanda said.

Not all the goat milk goes into candy. Goat milk is in great demand by those who have problems digesting cow's milk.

"There are no known allergies to goat's milk and lactose-intolerant individuals can digest goat milk without difficulty. It is naturally homogenized.

"Although goat milk has about the same amount of calories as cow milk, it breaks down differently in our digestive system." Amanda said.

Cow milk usually takes about 3½ hours to break down, which gives the milk a chance to curdle in the stomach. Goat milk takes approximately 30 minutes to break down. For this reason, many infants cannot tolerate cow milk but do quite well on goat milk. The curd of goat milk forms into very small light flakes that is soluble like human milk. Goat milk is easier for the feeble or weak digestive tract to handle.

"Goat milk is richer in the vital mineral salts that are necessary to life, and contrary to popular belief, it is not richer in butterfat than cow milk," Amanda said.

"Goat milk gets a bad rap because people milk in their backyard and then the milk tastes goaty," said Amanda. "It goat milk is properly handled, it tastes sweeter than cow milk but similar."

It tastes so similar, that Amanda likes to tell the story about a neighboring Holstein farmer. His wife switched the raw cow's milk with goat milk, and he never noticed.

"From a human health standpoint, goat milk is much better than the mechanically homogenized cow milk. It appears that when fat globules are forcibly broken up by mechanical means, it allows an enzyme associated with milk fat, known as xanthine oxidase, to become free and penetrate the intestinal wall. Once xanthine oxidase gets through the intestinal wall and to the heart and arteries, they in turn, may stimulate the body to release cholesterol into the blood in an attempt to lay a protective fatty material on the scarred areas. This can lead to arteriosclerosis. This is not a problem with natural (unhomogenized cow milk. In unhomogenized milk, this enzyme is normally excreted from the body without much absorption).

Amanda Schriefer, left, credits her mother Mona Adams with providing some of the recipes used for the variety of fudge flavors offered by Friendly Farm Fudge Factory located along Rt. 322 at Potters Mills.

The farm has a raw milk license, which requires much higher standards to be met than milk that is shipped. Using an automated milking system assures cleanliness. The milk is immediately put into a bulk tank that cools the milk within minutes to a temperature that assures freshness and a longer shelf life.

"It's hard to hang onto a license because there are such strict guidelines," Amanda said.

The 100-head herd is mostly Saanen bred with Alpine breeds to attain a higher butterfat.

Although the Schriefers ship their excess goat milk to a dairy, someday they'd like to change that. They'd like to start making cheese on the farm and put in a dairy to show the production end.

"But it's expensive to put up another building," she said.

They'd also like to increase the herd to 200 milking goats, which would be more manageable for the size building they now have.

The family does not show goats. "We don't have time," Amanda said.

High school students help on the farm and a woman is employed in the farm's gift shop.

"A negative aspect of having a farm open to visitors is that we never have time to vacation together," Amanda said. "Sometimes we go camping within 19 miles so that we can return home to milk."

Trent does the daily milking. Goat milk can be used just like cow milk in any recipe that calls for milk. In addition to fudge, goat milk makes excellent cheese, butter, ice cream, and yogurt.

It was Trent's idea to have his wife make fudge. She experiemented with a few recipes. The success snowballed and the farm now offers fudge in the following flavors: chocolate, chocolate vanilla, chocolate peanut butter, chocolate raspberry, chocolate mint, chocolate pecan, vanilla, and rocky road. It sells for $4 a box.

Penn State Football Coach To Be Honored

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Joe Paterno, Penn State football coach, will be honored at a special benefit dinner at the Hershey Convention Center on Wednesday, March 19. The evening is billed as "A Celebration of Excellence" and will include a reception and silent auction beginning at 6:00 p.m. followed by a dinner and tribute. Penn State sports celebrities, Football All-Americans, and Second Mile participants will have an opportunity to recognize Joe Paterno's many achievements and contributions. All monies raised will support programs provided by The Second Mile, a non-profit organization which offers services free of charge to 160,000 youth throughout Pennsylvania. PNC Bank, WHP580 Radio, and WPMT Fox 43 TV are among the primary underwriters for this fundraiser.

Joe Paterno's name has become synonymous with excellence on and off the field. As the Nittany Lion Head Coach since 1966, Paterno has lead his team to two national championships and four undefeated seasons during his tenure while developing a program that is as renowned for its academic integrity as it is for its athletic accomplishments. He has been Sports Illustrated's Sportsman of the Year, National Football Foundation Distinguished American, and Coach of the year four times.

Coach Paterno's investment in excellence is also apparent in his off the field pursuits as his wife, Sue, and he have committed themselves to strengthening the University and improving the lives of children and youth. This commitment and expertise have been recognized by many major corporations — Nike, Quaker State, Merrill Lynch, and Bell Atlantic to name but a few — and they have called upon Paterno to share his insights about teamwork, leadership, and vision as they work with their staffs to "strive for excellence."

Proceeds from this fundraising benefit will provide scholarships for many young people from Southcentral Pennsylvania to participate in The Second Mile's Summer Challenge and Leadership Camp Programs held at Fort Indiantown Gap. These scholarships support an activity-filled week of camp, important character building experiences, a full year of program intervention in the child's school system, and future opportunities for self-improvement.

The Second Mile, founded in 1982 by Jerry Sandusky, defensive football coordinator for Penn State, is devoted to helping children develop a sense of responsibility and hope for a positive future. The Second Mile now serves over 40,000 young people in the Susquehanna Valley, providing free services through prevention, early intervention and community-based programs.

For more information on ticket prices for this event, please call The Second Mile office at (717) 763-4614. Seating is limited.

ANSWER — Ralph Johnson, Sewell, N.J., wanted recipes for potato and for potato leek soups. Thanks to several readers who sent recipes. One is published here from Charlene Bennett, Clearville. Others will be printed in the Feb. 22 issue of this paper in the "Home On The Range," section.

Potato-Leek Soup

1½ cups sliced leeks or green onions
½ cup butter, divided
5 cups cubed, peeled potatoes
¾ cup chopped celery
1⅓ cups cubed carrots
2 teaspoons salt, divided
2 cups water
4 tablespoons all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 cups milk
2 chicken bouillon cubes

In a large Dutch oven, saute leeks in ¼ cup butter until tender. Add potatoes, celery, carrots, 1 teaspoon salt and water; cover and simmer for 20-25 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Meanwhile, in a medium saucepan, melt remaining butter. Add flour, pepper, and remaining salt; cook until smooth and bubbly. Gradually add milk and bouillon; cook and stir until mixture thickens. Stir into vegetables. Simmer, stirring occasionally, until heated through. Yield: 6-8 servings (about 2 quarts).

ANSWER — A New York reader wanted a recipe for English muffins, with a rather dry, very coarse texture. Thanks to Janet Grove, Airville, who sent her favorite recipe for English Muffin Bread, which is great to slice and toast for breakfast in place of the muffins.

English Muffin Bread

5-6 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
2 packages Rapid Rise yeast
2 cups milk
½ cup water
Cornmeal

In large bowl, combine 4 cups of flour, sugar, salt, baking soda, and yeast. Heat liquids until very warm (125-130 degrees). Add to dry mixture, beat well. Stir in as much of remaining flour as you can to make stiff batter. Spoon into 2 loaf pans that have been greased and sprinkled with cornmeal. Also sprinkle cornmeal over top of dough. Cover; let rise in warm place 30-45 minutes. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes. Remove from pans immediately and cool.

Remove from oven and turn off oven. Sprinkle with chocolate chips and nuts. Return to oven until chocolate chips are melted (3-5 minutes). Cut into squares while warm.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Tastes from county commodity groups offered a festive opening to the hundreds who attended the 84th annual meeting of the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Association at the Farm and Home Center recently.

Commodities offered the best of their bounty. Included were such specialties as emu soup, lamb stew, roast beef sandwiches, omelets, sliced apples, apple butter, chips, ice cream sundaes, milk punch, apple cider, and freshly sliced vegetables with dip.

Dr. John Schwartz, county extension director, reported that in 1996, 3,998 youth enrolled in 4-H clubs, 68 master gardeners provided horticultural assistance, and 5,134 meetings were held by the extension staff.

The annual meeting was also the time to recognize extension agents for their achievements during the past year.

Former extension farm management agent Alan Strock, who is now an ag banking officer, was recognized for receiving a national achievement award. Livestock extension agent Chester Hughes was lauded for his national recognization in reducing fat in beef and hogs.

Leon Ressler, county environmental extension agent, Ellen Dewey of the League of Women Voters, and Mary Frey of the Lancaster County Planning Commission, were presented a plaque for their work with the Lancaster County Groundwater Education Coalition.

Betty Conner representing the National Groundwater Foundation said that the county was one of 84 communities in the U.S., Canada and Mexico that were designated Groundwater Guardian Communities at the Groundwater Foundation Conference in Ill.

The coalition established a resource center for groundwater educational materials at the Shuts Environmental Library of the Lancaster County Library System. Materials include water curricula for teachers and water information

Spanish Feast To Offer Crusine From Seven Countries

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — "At the International Meal, we expect hundreds of 'gringos' who wish to sample foods from Latin American countries," Kim Ramirez said.

"Every year more and more people come," Kim said of the meal, which will be served on Feb. 22, from noon to 2 p.m. and again from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

It's the fourth year in a row that the New Holland Spanish Mennonite Church is offering the International feast at their church located at 24 N. Roberts Ave., New Holland.

Not only does the annual event acquaint people with Spanish cruisine but also shows that the Spanish population is a vital part of the Mennonite Church.

"When someone says 'Mennonite' everyone thinks German or Pennsylvania Dutch, but there are people from seven different Spanish countries represented at our church," Kim said.

Food prepared at the meal will include dishes from these seven countries. From Puerto Rico will be arroz amarillo con grandules (yellow rice and beans) and carne guisado (beef stew with Latin flavors. Mexico will be represented with traditional spicy foods such as tacos, refried beans, and mole (chicken with spices, chocolate and peanut flavors). Cuban arroz morro (rice with black beans, and platanos maduros (ripe fried pantains) will be cooked up by the Cuban members of the congregation.

The Colombians will be making flan (a milk custard from caramel sauce) and frijoles colorados (kidney beans with special spices). Honduras will be represented by platano chips (plantain chips), chicken with Honduranean spices, and guiso de pollo (chicken stew). Sopa de mani (peanut soup) and empanadas de carne (beef and vegetable fried dough pies) are Bolivian specialties.

The meal will include more ethnic favorites and an array of Spanish desserts in this all-you-can-eat buffet meal.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $4 for children, ages 3-10, and under 3, free. Although reservations are not required, they are recommended. For information, call Kim at (717 355-9934 or Grace Miller at (717) 354-9588.

Luz Mores, left, and Kim Ramirez show off some Mexican favorites that will be included in the all-you-can eat International Meal to be served Feb. 22, from lunch to 2 p.m. and from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the New Holland Spanish Mennonite Church.

PARTICLE SIZE CHANGES IN FEED DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

M. P. Zeigler, Graduate Student
H. B. Manbeck, Dept. Of Agricultural And Biological Engineering
W. B. Roush Dept. Of Poultry Science

Approximately 43 percent of all commercially prepared feed in the United States is now fed to poultry.

Seventy-five percent of the cost of production in raising or maintaining poultry attributes to the feed costs; three-fourths of this cost being allotted to maintenance needs and the remainder for productive purposes (Church, 1991).

Recent quality control research at Penn State has shown that day-to-day variance of metabolizable energy (ME) level in feed rations of poultry can cause significant increases in the net feed consumption of layer hens with no increase in the productivity of the birds (D'Alfonso, 1994; D'Alfonso et al., 1996).

The level of variance of the nutritional and energy content of poultry feed delivered to layer hens in commercial production houses by state-of-the-art feed distribution systems is not well quantified. Penn State graduate student Matthew P. Zeigler conducted a study to measure the variance of particle size, calcium, phosphorous and protein in two commercial feed distribution systems for poultry laying facilities.

Six hundred and sixty-nine feed samples were collected from six locations throughout two feed distribution systems in a commercial cage egg laying facility. Figure 1 is a schematic of the feed distribution systems. Bin sampling locations are shown in Figure 2.

The systems consisted of a commercial feed mill and two commercial layer production poultry houses with mash type feed. The distribution systems include that portion of the feed delivery system from the post-mixer to the point of consumption. The feed delivery systems consisted of four primary components: (1) post mixer and mill tank, (2) transport bulk feed truck, (3) four on-farm feed storage bins (with and without bin devices), and (4) two in-house feed distribution systems.

The bin device configurations consisted of an electric hopper unloading aid, a bin fill deflection device, the combination of both devices, and no devices, located inside four on-farm storage bins. The in-house distribution systems consisted of a drag chain system located in one cage layer production house and a drag auger located in another cage layer production house.

Study results include the effects of post-mixer and transport, transport to the on-farm storage bins, the several bin device configurations, and the two in-house distribution systems on the geometric mean diameter (GMD) of the feed and the changes and day-to-day variance of the feed GMD, protein, calcium, and phosphorus contents. The specific objectives of the research were to: (1) Quantify and partition the variance of key nutrient levels of poultry feed for layers from the time it leaves the mixer at the feed mill until it is delivered to the bird by the in-house feed distribution system; (2) Quantify the changes in particle size and selected nutrient segregation of poultry feeds due to the insertion of a bin fill deflection device and/or a bin electric hopper unloading aid in an on-farm storage bin; and (3) Determine the difference in particle size and selected nutrient segregation in poultry feeds between a drag chain and a drag auger in-house feed distribution system.

Typical study results are shown in Figure 3. Figure 3 contains plots of the geometric mean diameter (GMD) of the feed particles from the mixer location to the end of the in-house distribution line for the layer houses with the drag chain and the drag auger systems. The values plotted in Figure 3 are averages for five loads of feed. In both cases, there is little difference in the average GMD of the feed particles from the time it leaves the mixer to the time it leaves the on-farm storage bin.

In both houses there is a dramatic change in GMD of feed particles between the bin hopper exit (Location D) and the first sampling location inside the house (Location E-1). This is attributed in large part to the residual feed remaining in the trough between feedings. In house 2, the GMD then continues to decrease as the feed moves from location E-1 to location E-5. However, in house 6, the measured GMD remained nearly constant between locations E-1 and E-5.

The conclusions of the study are: (1) Post-mixer transport and storage; feed transport and trailer unloading had no significant effect ($p < 0.05$) on the geometric diameter (GMD) of the feed; (2) The bin fill deflection device had no significant effect ($p < 0.05$) on the change in GMD, nor on the variances of the GMD and nutrient contents (protein, calcium and phosphorus) of the feed delivered to the in-house distribution system; (3) The electric hopper unloading aid had no significant effect ($p < 0.05$) on the change in GMD, nor on the variances of GMD and nutrients of the feed delivered to the in-house distribution system; (4) The combination of a bin fill deflection device and electric hopper unloading aid had no significant effect ($p < 0.05$) on the change in GMD, nor on the variances of GMD and nutrients of the feed delivered to the in-house distribution system; (5) The residual feed in the in-house feeder troughs had a significant effect ($P < 0.05$) on the GMD and nutrient contents of the feed delivered to the in-house distribution system; and (6) The drag auger in-house distribution system, in comparison to the drag chain system, provided a more homogeneous mix of feed to all birds.

Details of the study are available in the Master of Science Thesis by Zeigler (1996) and in the ASAE Paper by Zeigler et al. (1996).

Lehigh Ag Hosts John Deere Day 1997

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Lehigh Ag Equipment of Allentown will hold its annual John Deere Day celebration beginning at 10 a.m. on Thursday February 20, 1997 at their Ruppsville Road dealership location. The day will highlight the latest in cutting-edge technology, featuring new products from John Deere, according to Phil Wheaton, General Manager of Lehigh Ag Equipment.

Driven by Progress/Backed By History is the theme for this year's John Deere Day, marking its 60th anniversary.

"We invite everyone to come and see John Deere's new models for 1997," says Phil Wheaton. "We will have a big-screen video program and plenty of activities for the whole family. As usual, we'll have door prizes and through the services of the Macungie Grange serve a turkey barbecue lunch. For those unable to attend during the day, starting at 7 p.m., we will have an evening presentation complete with refreshments. We will have special displays including one hosted by Don Johnson from John Deere Information Systems providing information to those interested in the "Personal Parts System" which will allow a customer to link into Lehigh Ag Equipment's parts system from their home computer to check availability and to order parts. We will also have other John Deere representatives in attendance with information on equipment and regarding credit services such as Farm Plan. As well all the staff of Lehigh Ag Equipment will be available to answer any questions customers might have."

The annual John Deere Day program draws farmers from around the area to see the latest equipment in action. "It's an excellent opportunity to check out new technology and to see what's happening with current issues and ever changing farming practices such as narrow rows, precision farming, and safety," Phil Wheaton adds.

Hesston Puts Wrap On Baling Needs

ATLANTA, Ga. — In response to the move to baling silage or high moisture crop, Hesston® is expanding its hay system to include the BW 40 and BW 45 Bale Wrappers.

Baling silage is gaining popularity because it improves efficiency, provides greater flexibility in dealing with weather, and can enhance nutritional value of feed.

"The introduction of these two models recognizes the trends in the hay business," said Ron Hess, Hesston general marketing manager. "Hesston wants to satisfy all of the farmer's haying needs and the bale wrapper is simply an extension of our current product lineup."

Both models can handle either a round or square bale with a diameter/length of five feet — weighing up to 2,600 pounds. The more economical BW 40 features a rotating platform on a 3-point mounted frame. The operator uses the tractor's hydraulics to perform all tasks. A set of four rollers on the platform cradles the bale and turns it smoothly for an even wrap. As the table rotates, the plastic film is applied up to 22 revolutions per minute. Once completed, the platform tips, and the bale gently rolls onto the ground.

The self-loading BW 45 features a stationary platform with rotating rollers. As the bale turns on the rollers, a rotating arm circles the bale to tightly seal it in film. A programmable control unit on the BW 45 allows the operator to wrap each bale the same number of times with equal overlap. The control unit also displays the number of bales wrapped, the revolutions per minute of the wrapping arm, and other functions of the machine.

Solve Hard Water Problems Magnetically

RICHMOND HEIGHTS, Ohio — "Hard water" has always been a concern for homeowners, farmers, business owners, and industry. Although most of our nation's water supply is chemically treated and rendered clean enough for drinking, much of it contains varying amounts of dissolved minerals, primarily calcium (lime), in the form of calcium carbonate.

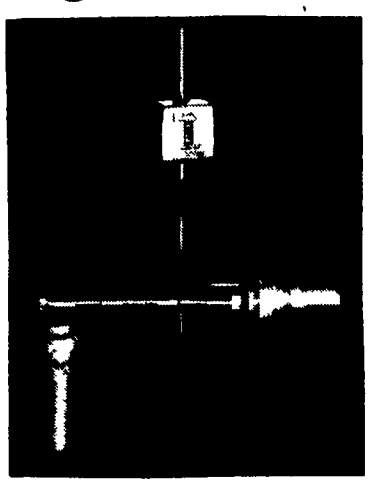
Calcium scale buildup is responsible for clogging valves, faucet aerators, steam irons, coffee makers, and irrigation sprinkler heads. It reduces heat transfer in home water heaters, increasing energy costs and is accountable for elevated operation and maintenance costs in numerous industries where water is used as a heating or cooling medium. In its untreated state, hard water forms a hard crystalline scale on surfaces such as water pipes, reducing the interior diameter of pipes while reducing water flow and pressure.

Traditional water softeners, used to combat destructive scale, replace calcium carbonate with sodium chloride (salt), which is considered unhealthy for drinking. They also add salt to our groundwater, which endangers the environment.

Now there's SoPhTec, a "magnetic physical water conditioner" that controls and eliminates scale buildup without the use of chemicals or salt.

The SoPhTec C-500, designed for home use, is a small compact device that easily clamps on to most water source pipes. SoPhTec utilizes specially configured magnetic resonance equipment to control and eliminate scale buildup. SoPhTec is not a water softener as it does not add or remove anything from the water. SoPhTec technology makes natural water, with all of its important minerals intact, act like "soft" water.

SoPhTec houses a powerful configuration of magnetic fields that eliminate calcium scale buildup by changing the physical characteristics of water. These magnetic fields fracture the molecule clusters that encapsulize foreign particles in the water, allowing the calcium carbonates to float freely in solution through water, instead of clinging to the inside surfaces of water pipes. In other words, this amazing magnetic effect super cleans the surface of pipes and other containers, thereby reducing the extensive damage to these surfaces caused by the buildup of lime scale.



SoPhTec, a "magnetic physical water conditioner," controls and eliminates scale buildup without the use of chemicals or salt.

According to a report by Dr. Klaus J. Kronenberg, recognized worldwide for his singular achievements in the study, research and dissemination of information to individuals and companies involved in physical water conditioning, "magnetically treated water reduces unpleasant sulphur odors and 'brown water' caused by corrosion. Water used for irrigation may penetrate the soil more easily, especially if the soil normally tends to absorb water poorly. Water heaters require less heat to maintain the same water temperature, once previously formed scale has been removed from the heating surfaces. Water heaters may operate for shorter intervals, provide hotter water and ultimately reduce fuel bills. In addition, powdery products mix and blend more easily. Magnetically treated water appears to be more liquid, moves faster and has a lower viscosity. It seems to be a lighter liquid."

For more than 27 years, Chambersburg Farm Service has been serving the agricultural community with Case IH equipment, parts, and service. Founded in 1970, the dealership expanded to purchase Carlisle Farm Service in 1985.

With a large customer base in surrounding counties and into Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia, the friendly employees man a fleet of service trucks and operate a 20 bay repair and equipment setup shop. In addition, they stock $2 million in parts.

Because Chambersburg Farm Service believes the customer is the heart blood of the business, and that people buy from people, every effort is made to supply what the customer needs. If for some reason they don't have the exact part in stock, their ties with the Case IH computer network allows access to parts for overnight delivery and equipment both new and used.

The mission of this farm service is to provide the agriculture community with fulfilling and satisfying service, parts, and equipment required for the success and continuity of the agricultural industry.

New and old customers are welcome to visit the dealership. These customers will find employees with 120 combined years of experience in the service department; 80 years combined experience in the sales department and 120 years combined experience in the parts department.

GEHL. Scavenger® Manure Spreaders

In Stock at Binkley & Hurst

THE BEST JUST GOT BETTER!

Better Performances. Gehl Scavenger®, the original V-tank spreader, has built a well-deserved reputation for delivering unmatched performance in a wide variety of materials. The new Scavenger takes that performance to the next level with even better spreading patterns in the toughest heavily-bedded manures.

Increased Durability. Not only has the new Scavenger been designed to out-perform all other V-tank spreaders, but the main drive system components have been beefed up for extra durability and increased dependability.

Why is Scavenger the Best? One big reason is the unique new round-core auger. This auger features segmented paddles grouped in a spiral pattern. This flighting configuration delivers more material to the discharge expeller in less time for faster unloading. The paddles are precisely positioned to deliver more uniform feeding to the discharge expeller. This exceptional design breaks up and blends all types of manure.

The auger is hydraulically powered both up and down (unlike competitive units that use springs, gravity or fixed augers). This design provides more control to chop through bridged material or pwer down through heavy loads.

Outstanding Application Control. Gehl's proven Varitio discharge system has been made even better. It's 33 percent wider on the Model 1315. On all new models the expeller assembly has been significantly strengthened. New square-tooth expeller paddles spread smoothly and evenly. You choose the rate you want, from heavy spring-time spreading to light top-dressing. With Scavenger you have complete control right at your fingertips

Scavenger is Simply Better. The Gehl Scavenger is a simple spreader. It's solid and durable with sealed, welded tank construction and a full length channel steel sub-frame. Every Scavenger is built to deliver top performance year after year.

Your Gehl Dealer can show you why the new Scavenger V-tank spreader is still the best.

Let's Talk Torque
A High-Tech Retofit Adds Life To Older Tractors

Retrofit with the Fittest

Exclusively from Case dealers, the Case IH retrofit torque amplifier with the Mechanical Diode™ one-way clutch brings a new standard of reliability and value to your older IH tractors.

- The Mechanical Diode last significantly longer than any sprag clutch. It relies on a single strut to engage for lockup while the sprag clutch relies on the engagement of 30 separate cams. Plus, its ratchet-like action needs only a 15-degree pivot for full engagement.
- Includes a full 5-year warranty (parts and labor) on the torque amplifier and a 15-year warranty on the Mechanical Diode component when we install it.

The BEARLINK's seven inch adjustment stroke moves with hydraulic power, automatically locking in place wherever you want it...saving you trips back behind the tractor...making hooking implements or taking them off faster and safer...BEARLINK owners tell of shortening the hydraulic link while turning around at the ends of fields saving damage to equipment and making in-field angle adjustments without stopping...

GREAT TRACTOR.

The New White 6045 ROPS. When you're working in and under low overheads, this low profile 45 PTO hp tractor is a great value for today's farmer. The 6045 gives you a low profile straddle mount and a 12F/12R synchronized reverser transmission to change direction in any gear. For reliable power, there's a liquid-cooled diesel engine. And its true center line power front axle with a 50-degree turning angle helps you get around the tight spaces. Plus, the 6045 has a 2-year/2000-hour AGCO warranty on 100% parts and labor, with no deductible. Climb into a 6045 at your local White dealer. And ask about flexible Agricredit financing plans, offering low rates and waiver of interest contracts.

Belarus

2011 2WD ROPS
2000 SERIES TRACTORS
2045 4WD ROPS

DOUBLE THE BELARUS VALUE.

Even the smallest of jobs has to be done right. that's why our tough new 2000 Series tractors are built with the same durability, value and affordability you expect from Belarus.

Choose from two versatile models: the 2011 or the 2045, each with 540/1000 PTO and Category I three-point hitch. Add the strength of the hard-working 22 hp fuel efficient 2-cylinder, air-cooled diesel, and you have the small-tractor engine that's big on performance. And that makes the 2011 and 2045 tractors ideal for everything from lawn and garden work to small acreage applications.

But that's not all. The 2000 Series is available with two-wheel (2011) or four-wheel (2045) rugged traction. Additional features include the ease of power-assisted steering and a solid transmission with 16 forward and eight reverse speeds. Add them all up, and you've got the series that see small projects through from start to finish. So get a good day's work done - the Belarus way.

Vitamix Makes Antibiotics Obsolete!
You Can Sell The Milk
When You Use Vitamix Instead Of Antibiotics

A dairyman's helper gave a cow an antibiotic and forgot to make a written record of it. He then went on vacation and for the next five days, the milk from 900 cows went down the drain!! The $42,000.00 lost would have bought enough Vitamix to last for years and years for that dairyman's whole herd.

You can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix. Vitamix is a mixture of vitamins, minerals, enzymes, electrolytes, and proteins, especially calculated to feed the immune system. Vitamix is the result of over 20 years research and over 20,000 feeding experiments. Vitamixingredients are so micro pulverized and easily digestible that some of them melt in the mouth and are absorbed into the bloodstream while the cow is still chewing her feed. Her organs increase the output of antibodies (white cells) within minutes, and can often double the output of antibodies within one hour after consuming Vitamix, and you can get Vitamix without a prescription. Vitamix is all natural. You just put Vitamix in the feed whenever there are symptoms of a contagious disease or infection.

The cow's immune system can cure any and every kind of contagious disease and infection quicker, safer, more consistently than any medical drug in the world when you support the immune system. The immune system is the only real defense. I keep cows and horses for feeding experiments.The last time I used an antibiotic was in 1984 and haven't lost a cow, calf or horse since I quit using antibiotics.

Any time any human or animal gets a contagious disease or any kind of infection, it is for one reason, and one reason only; The immune system failed to do an adequate job of defending against it. In other words, the immune system let you down.

Every time you use antibiotics, sulfa drug or an immune stimulator; you weaken the immune system. See the Physicians Desk Reference (PDR) for more information on the side effects of antibiotics. The information in the PDR was provided by the drug companies that make the drugs as required by law.

Shouldn't we be feeding the immune system instead? Support the immune system. Their lives and health depend on it. Feed Vitamix every time for every contagious disease or infection.

Vitamix is the best procedure in the world for Mastitis. It is quick and easy and you can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix.

How long does it take when you take the "Support the immune system approach?" I have seen calves that were down, had high fever, bloody scours and were dehydrated. One needed help to hold its head up. The only thing I gave them was Vitamix and water. In three hours, I had to run them down and get them cornered to give the Vitamix. Dairymen tell me that Vitamix is faster than anything else they ever used.

When there is a serious case of anything contagious or infectious; I give Vitamix once an hour for three hours, or until they are back on their feed and doing noticeably better. I continue Vitamix six times daily for a few days. Vitamix typically costs only $2 to $3 a day for a cow (less for a calf). The total cost for one cow for one illness is typically $8 to $10 from start to finish.

Vitamix costs less than antibiotics, and you can get it without a prescription. Vitamix is completely drug free!!! You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix !!! (When you use antibiotics, you pour the milk out for 5 days, sometimes more. You risk making a mistake and pouring all your milk out for 5 days or more.)

You save money Every Time you use Vitamix. Get some Vitamix now to keep on hand. Use Vitamix as soon as you see symptoms of anything contagious or infectious. You will know you did the right thing within hours.

Preventing and curing all contagious disease and infections boils down to this. Increasing the capacity to produce white cells (Antibodies). All white cells are made by the bone marrow. Antibiotics cause "bone marrow depression" thereby reducing its ability to make white cells to fight diseases and infection (See Physician's Desk Reference Book [PDR]).

I have done over 20,000 feeding experiments on healing the body, and have yet to find an incurable contagious disease or infection.

Why sit around waiting for a miracle? You can order Vitamix right now. Miracles are great and they do happen now and then; if you wait around one might happen for you. But the immune system is a miracle. You can order Vitamix today and keep it on hand, then you will have it when you need it. Vitamix ...when you need a miracle. The best source of information about Vitamix is people who have used it. Ask a friend about Vitamix.

DIETARY MINERALS FOR DAIRY COWS ON PASTURES

Larry Muller
Penn State University

Minerals are required by all dairy cows, and the amounts found in most feeds normally are inadequate for high milk production or growth. If these requirements are not met, deficiency symptoms can occur.

Pastures are no exception and are often deficient in several minerals compared to the NRC requirements. Even with grain supplementatation of pasture-based diets, most rations need to be supplemented with concentrated sources of certain minerals.

Usually minerals are categorized as "macrominerals" and "microminerals" (Table 1). The macrominerals are generally expressed as percent of the dry matter of a feed. Minerals needed in lesser amounts, often called trace minerals, are usually expressed as parts per million (PPM) or milligrams per kilogram.

Pasture Composition

Table 2 contains average levels of minerals in four pasture forage types under intensive rotational grazing. For reference, the NRC recommended mineral content for the total ration (forages and grains) is presented for high producing lactating cows, growing heifers, and dry cows. These values are averages based on samples collected primarily in New York, but should be similar for Pennsylvania.

Table 1. Minerals required in the diet of dairy cattle.

Grazing Gazette

•Calcium. The Ca content of pastures ranges from .43 percent for grass and increases, as expected, with more legume in the pasture to about 1.3 percent. The NRC recommendation is that Ca be at least .70 percent of the total ration DM for high producing cows. Clearly, the grass pasture would need to be supplemented with additional Ca to meet the cow's needs.

In Table 3 are shown average mineral contents of feedstuffs that typically would be used to supplement pasture-based feeding programs. With the exception of alfalfa hay, all feedstuffs are low in Ca compared to the lactating cow's needs. Therefore, additional supplementation of Ca is need to ensure adequate daily intake with grass or mixed mostly grass-based pastures.

•Phosphorus. Phosphorus supplementation is required with nearly all types of feeding programs. Pasture samples averaged about .25-.30 percent P (Table 2) and all are low compared to the NRC recommendations of .45 percent of the total ration DM for milking cows. Many feedstuffs typically fed with pasture-based programs, particularly grains, are low in P (Table 3); thus, additional P supplementation is usually needed. Protein supplements such as soybean meal, corn distillers, and brewers grains are high in P (Table 3), but the small amounts are normally fed.

•Magnesium. The NRC recommendation is that Mg be fed at .25 percent of the total ration DM. On spring pastures, which bring a risk of grass (Mg) tetany, a Mg level of .30-.35 percent of the total ration DM or higher is often needed. Pasture Mg content averaged .20-.28 percent being lowest on grass and increasing as the legume content increased (Table 2). Magnesium levels were lowest in the spring (Fig. 1), emphasizing that supplemental Mg is most critical in the spring. Magnesium oxide is the most common source of supplemental Mg and should be added to the grain ration to bring the total ration Mg to at least .30 percent. Cows often will not consume all the allotted grain with lush pastures in the spring, thus other supplemental methods may be needed. Bolusing individual cows with MgO is one option. A free choice mineral block with elevated Mg content can also be considered.

•Potassium content of pastures is high (Table 2) compared to needs and may cause problems related to the mineral imbalances. Excess K in spring is a factor in causing grass tetany and hypomagnesia, and can also lead to imbalances in cation:anion in dry cows which can contribute to increased milk fever with pasture.

•Sodium and chlorine content of pastures are low compared to needs (Table 2). Most feeds listed in Table 3 have low levels of Na relative to the cow's requirements. Supplemental salt should be provided to cows on pasture.

The trace mineral content of pastures varies among elements compared to the cow's needs. A deficiency of any trace mineral can lead to serious health and production problems. Zinc and Copper appear to be the lowest in pasture compared to needs (Table 2). Other trace minerals that need to be supplemented are Mo, Co, I, and Se. The Northeast is considered to be an area deficient in I and Se, and cows should be supplemented with these trace minerals. With the availability of trace mineral mixtures and trace mineral salt, cows should not be deficient in trace minerals.

Forage Analyses

Analyses of pastures for macro minerals is needed periodically. Mineral composition varies by type of pasture and season of the year, as shown in Table 2. In addition, mineral content will differ between years due to changes in the plant composition of the pasture and to the fertilization program.

In one study, Ca content differed by .17 percent in two consecutive grazing seasons in the same pastures. In an Ohio study, K and P were both higher than typically expected. This suggests that a complete mineral analyses be considered at the beginning of each grazing season. At least one additional analyses may be needed to monitor any seasonal changes.

Feeding Minerals

Minerals are best fed mixed with other feeds (force fed) such as in the grain mixture or in a total mixed ration. Supplemental grain is usually fed to cows on pasture and provides a means to get known amounts of minerals into cows. With lush spring pastures, some cows may not consume all their allotted grain and minerals. The minerals in the grain may need to be concentrated to a higher nutrient density to avoid deficiencies.

In the short run, an imbalance of deficiency of some minerals may not be evident in the animal.

Table 3. Average mineral concentrations in selected feedstuffs.

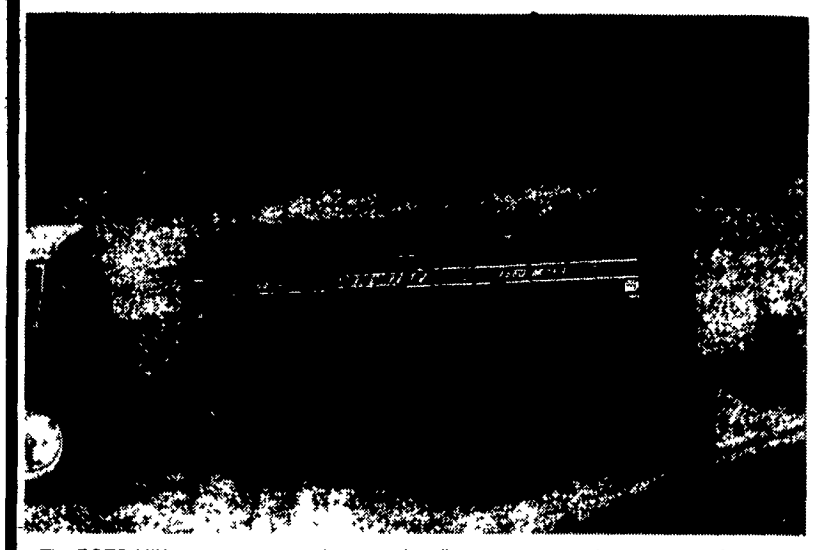
ROTO-MIX FEED MIXERS



The ROTO-MIX professionals know that quality feed means increased consumption, therefore, higher production levels. With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration. Nothing robs a ration of nutritional value more than fines Conventional auger mixers use pressure to move the feed through the mixing chamber, thus crushing the feed and creating fines But the ROTO-MIX patented mixing system uses a rotor to gently lift the feed past the wedging point of the lower side auger, keeping fines to a minimum and reducing nutritional loss Even the most nutritious ration is effective only if the cattle eat the complete ration Improperly mixed feed allows the cattle to "nose out" what they don't want, disrupting the balance of nutrients But the ROTO-MIX end-to-end side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat

Check all the ROTO-MIX advantages... the bottom line is what counts.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

INTRODUCING FULLTIME
A REVOLUTIONARY NEW FE CAN TURN YOUR HERD INTO

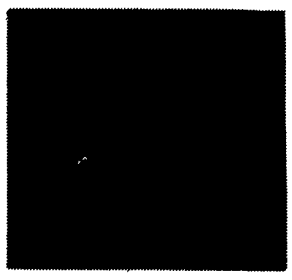
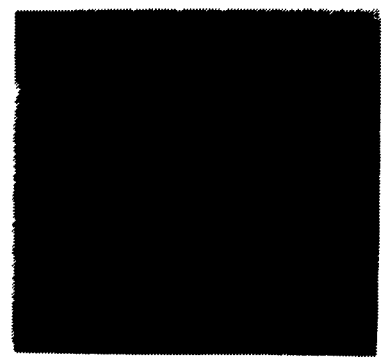
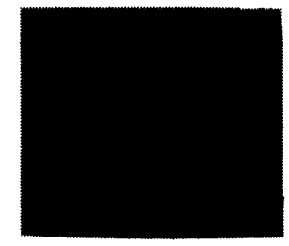
That's right, feed your dairy herd our remarkable new FullTime™ forage, and within a week, you could see results like those at Michigan State University (MSU). Cows fed Cargill's new FullTime forage hybrids on average consumed 8 percent more dry matter, resulting in 5.5 more pounds of milk per cow per day while showing improved body condition.



A Forage Like This Only Comes Around Once In A Blue Moon. There are at least two ways fiber digestibility can improve a cow's performance. One, by increasing the energy density of its diet, and the other, by increasing dry-matter intake. It's these two components working together that explain the remarkable test results with FullTime forage. You see, our new line of FullTime forages contain up to 40 percent less indigestible lignin than traditional hybrids. This means that FullTime forage rates higher in fiber digestibility. That, in turn, contributes to the increase in dry-matter intake of nearly 4½ pounds per cow per day in the MSU trial. By digesting fiber more rapidly and more completely, cows can move feed out of the rumen more quickly and make room for more feed. This translates into more energy for milk production in an optimally balanced ration and is what makes FullTime forage a nutritional breakthrough.



A Better Forage All The Way Around. No longer do you have to deal with the timing or weather issues related to hay crops. Or balance grain yield over forage quality like you do with other hybrids. With FullTime forage you get high-fiber digestibility, low lignin, improved dry-matter intake, better cow performance, and perhaps best of all, a harvest that's only once a year.



feeding silage ma can have a signifi- cant effect on a dairy farm's profit- ability. Even after accounting for the costs of higher dry-matter intake, the aver- age response of 5.5 pounds of milk per cow per day priced at 14 cents per pound exceeds $150 per cow per lactation.

You Could Be Just A Week Away From Greener Pastures.

The results are in. And they're remarkable. Milk production. Herd health. Even your bottom line can improve when you feed new FullTime forage from Cargill. So, why wait? See your Cargill dealer today.

Depend On Quality

Economical turbocharged diesel engines, driver-friendly design, one of the strongest frames in their class—no wonder Mitsubishi Fuso trucks are the right choice for your business. They keep on rolling, day after day—on narrow streets and in high-traffic areas and other tight spots that put a premium on reliable operation and agile maneuverability.

See us today for a demonstration!

PURINA PROFILE

KREIDER'S MILL, INC.

Mark Kreider has worked around feed mills all his life. After working for Purina for eight years as a district manager, Kreider and his wife Maureen bought Kreider's Mill at Loysville in 1979. Serving Perry, Cumberland, Franklin, Juniata, and Dauphin Counties and a sub dealer in Adams County, the Kreiders specialize in dairy but also sell some bagged horse, hog and steer feed for smaller farms.

"We are more than an order taker." Kreider says. "And our advice exceeds what you should feed. For us, the dairyman's best interest comes first. Our customers appreciate this attitude and know that's where we are coming from.

"Purina is the foundation of our formulas. They have the best quality and value of product in the field bar none. Both their management and nutritional counseling personnel are the best in the business. Purina has the flexibility to work with custom formulas where we can use a base product from Purina and customize it for every dairy farm's needs. We can produce a feed for your farm that incorporates the best feeding program at the best value.

"There is a real need for the local Purina dealer who knows what is going on at the farms in his area to be available to help make the customer's operation profitable. You don't need to visit the customer every week, but you must be ready to take his call when he does have a need.

"Dairymen today need to look at farming as More of a business. Just because your grandfather and/or father bought feed of a certain brand does not mean you should also do this. You owe it to yourself and to your future in farming to see if another feed dealer offers you more than your present source of feed does.

"For us, if a dairyman changes forages today, I can have the new reformulated feed made and delivered to the farm by the next day. You can't get that kind of service from a company that is a hundred miles away.

"Our goal is for our customer to be profitable. That way we will have more business and we will be profitable. We always take the long term point of view."

Mark and Maureen Kreider pose in front of their large feed mill at Loysville. They believe Purina has the best products on the market today. And when new formulas are needed on the farms of their customers, turn around time can be as fast as next day delivery.
